THE WORLD OF WOMEN

DAME FASHION'S WHIMS

1863—The Civil War girl in charming holiday bonnet ... its black taffeta crown swathed in ostrich feathers with gay flowers peeping through.

1873—Saucy! ... this plumed hat of dark straw with just enough brim to shadow the brow and wisplike crown revealing the proud wearer's hair.

1883—This demure bonnet charmed the beaux of 50 years ago! ... Straw, it was, with chin string ... its soft gray silk covering trimmed with sky pink roses.

1893—Dashing was this chic sailor with port crown and brim ... given a spirited gesture by the sweep of ostrich feather at the side.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Ham for the Meat Course

At present it is possible to buy an excellent cut of ham for less than one has to pay for the better joints of beef and mutton, so now is the time to try to follow recipes and delight your household with something novel and very savoury and appetising.

Casserole of Ham
Soak a 1½ lb. cut of ham in water overnight, then cut it in small pieces and place in a casserole. Chop 2 onions and slice 2 apples, cover the ham with these, sprinkle with ½ oz. brown sugar, and on the top put 1½ lb. small potatoes, peeled. Add 3 teaspoonfuls stock, a dessertspoonful tomato catsup, and 4 peppercorns, tied in muslin.

Put the lid on the casserole and bake in a very moderate oven for about 1½ hours. After the dish has cooked for 1 hour remove the lid of the casserole so that the potatoes may brown. Before serving remove the peppercorns and sprinkle the top with chopped parsley.

Ham With Spaghetti
Boil a teaspoonful spaghetti till tender, and drain. Place a large slice of lean ham in a casserole, cover with spaghetti, then with sliced onions, and lastly with thinly sliced potatoes, seasoning each layer with salt and pepper as you go along. Cover all with milk, sprinkle the top liberally with grated cheese, and bake in a rather slow oven for three hours.

Ham Mousse
This delicious dish is made from left-overs of boiled ham. Mince about ½ or ¾ lb. cooked ham and add 3 tablespoonfuls browned breadcrumbs, a teaspoonful good stock, a dessertspoonful finely chopped parsley, pepper and salt to season, and the beaten yolks of 2 eggs.

Beat the 2 egg whites very stiffly, fold them lightly into the mixture, and pour into a mould, previously well-buttered and coated with breadcrumbs. Stand the mould in a tin containing water, and bake in a good oven for about ¾ hour. To serve, turn out and pour tomato sauce over.

Ham and Potato Salad
This cold dish is excellent for serving on a specially busy day, as both potato and ham may be cooked in advance. Peel 1½ lb. potatoes and cook them carefully so that they do not break. When cool enough to handle cut them into dice, and cut ½ lb. cooked ham into small pieces. Place these two ingredients in a bowl, add a teaspoonful chopped onion and a little cross-grained bread, and mix with a generous amount of rather thin mayonnaise. Serve in a glass bowl after sprinkling the surface with finely-chopped parsley, or arrange on lettuce leaves on individual plates.

FASHION NOTES

Plain Rounded Neck-Lines for New Gowns

(From A Paris Correspondent)

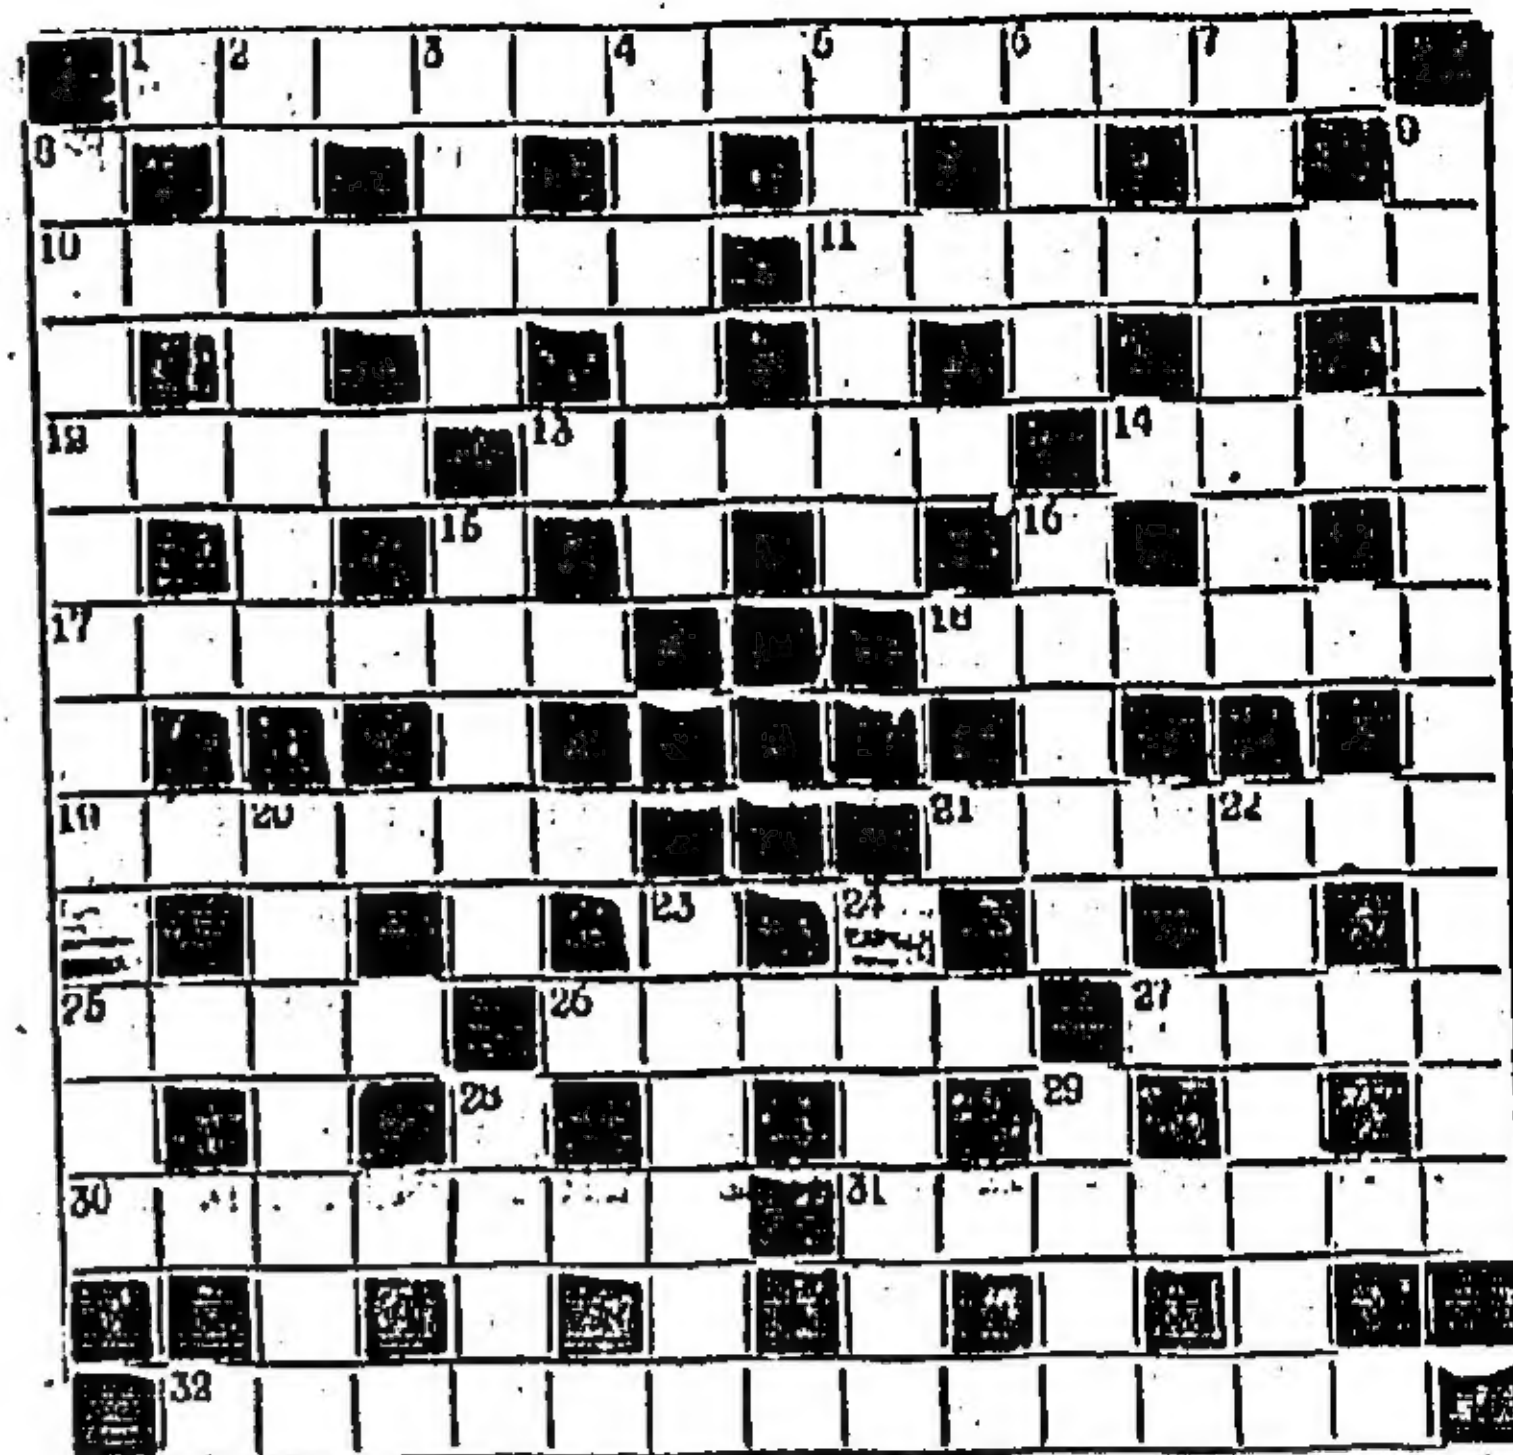

In the latest collections, it was noticeable that the plain bodice, either with rounded neckline guilts of trimming, or the high throat collar, is stressed. Wraps are often of contrasting colour. The vogue for two-colour costumes has resulted in "ensembles" that have nothing to link them together save a subtle harmony of construction, or maybe a belt or a scarf that may be interchangeably worn with coat or frock.

Suits of all kinds, from the classic tailor-made to the soft silk dressmaker suit, are much worn for all daytime occasions. Coats are of all lengths, bolero, waist-length, hip, wrist, or finger-tip length, three-quarters, seven-eighths, or long. It is entirely a question of the time, the place, and the girl. The decided tendency, however, is towards abbreviation.

Capotelets and cape-sleeves are very logical accompaniments of the natural figure, because, by widening the shoulders, they make the waist look small. The cape sleeves, though adorable, have already spread so rapidly that they constitute almost a leg-o-mutton menace.

CHAPTER XLII

The days drifted by. Long, sweet, drowsy days followed by long, cool evenings. Mornings, after early coffee, the four would go to the beach for a swim in the green-blue water that flooded the sand with transparent depths. Protected by the palm trees, they would rest on the sand, blinking at the glare, drinking the milk of fresh coconuts gathered by the inevitable native boys.

The girls rarely saw Bud. Ever on the alert, even in this drowsy heat, Bud was dashing for supplies in the boat, rising early and repairing to the section of the island set apart for the airport, swimming alone, his bronzed body graceful and swift in the leaping foam.

Bud ate any time, anywhere he happened to be from deliciously filled trays prepared by old Maria.

Barry and Steve, in white linen and pith helmets, were frequently summoned to settle questions at the airport. Frequently in the cool of the morning, they golfed. They would disappear immediately after the 11:30 luncheon, or "breakfast," as they called it, ostensibly to sleep but frequently to figure on paper, to discuss matters at the mine, to attend to correspondence.

The flamboyant about the house blossomed, covering the rear facade with a shower of petals at every gust of breeze.

Holiday House, Mona found, was the only estate on the island and Holiday Island comprised 25 square miles. A fringe of native huts, close by but hidden in a tunnel of trees, accommodated the corps of servants.

"This place, here?" Barry repeated, in response to Mona's timid query. She still felt ill at ease with him and the conversation between them had never veered from generalities. He looked about affectionately at the huge house flanked with its veritable Eden. "Oh, it's just an old plantation house. They used to raise sugar here for the market, when there was one. Too much dieting nowadays!"

"Well," said Lottie, "maybe we did but you like us better, don't you, than if we looked like Miss Grace?"

Miss Grace was a recent importation from Port of Spain, invited out of deference to conventions. She was a sort of official chaperon, the sister of a college professor with a family of instructor sons. At the moment the house was in her capable hands. Seated on the terrace, they could hear Miss Grace giving orders to the servants, who adored her.

"Maybe buccaneers lived in the house," Barry went on. "I don't know. Anyway it has been pretty much a one man's island all the while." They were seated on the terrace at the tea hour which brought the four together, refreshed and freshly garbed, after the exigencies of the morning.

Barry gazed with pride at the house, rising above the surrounding shrubbery, a house wide-roomed, ample and high-towered. Overlooking the sea as it did in a wide sweep, buccaneers of old might well have set their watch there.

"Whoever lived here kept slaves," Steve said idly. "It's a funny thing. I could live in New York all my life and study at school about the slaves in the south but no visit to Harlem ever got me very much excited. But here! Just the thought of slaves working under this broiling sun burns me up."

"The slave owner here," Barry went on, "resorted to that rotten trick they learned in St. Lucia and in Martinique. They brought over the fer-de-lance to keep the slaves from running away!"

"Running away?" Lottie's eyes were wide. "How could they do that? Where would they run to?" "They'd run mostly to the high bush. That section pretty well grown up that you see for miles beyond the golf course. There are waterfalls in there, they tell me, though we've never come upon one. Well, the slave owners thought the slaves would streak for the bush. They were always superstitious too, believed the slaves had superhuman ways of getting messages to each other from island to island. But they couldn't work any of their magic here in plain sight on the sugar cane fields no the snake, the fer-de-lance, was planted in the bush."

"The snake was supposed to drive them back?" asked Mona.

"To frighten them back! To keep them out of the bush entirely. It was a bad move, though. The fer-de-lance killed more white men than it did slaves. They had to bring over the mongoose to destroy it."

"Are there any of them left?" asked Lottie fearfully.

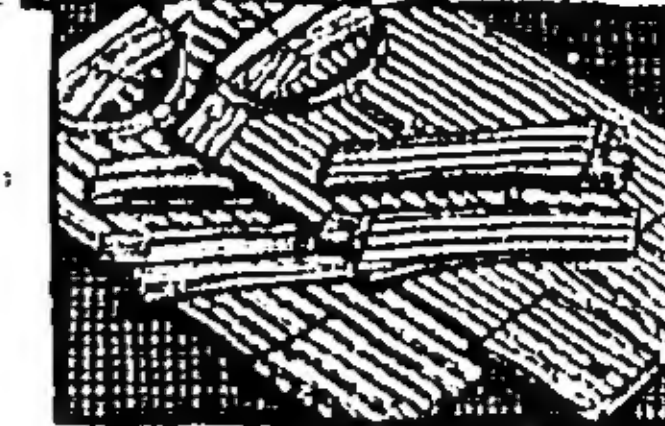

"Now? I don't believe so. The man who sold us this island said his father had seen one years ago and the butcher at Barbuda, where we sometimes go for supplies, said that the father had died from a bite. Naturally while negotiating a sale our man didn't tell us that!"

Lottie's eyes were on the horizon following a trail of smoke lying out against the water like gauze blown by the wind.

TEN DAYS IN GERMANY

for youths at the end of the war. He is 73 years old and was born in Germany. The Nazis, however, looked up his ancestry and discovered that his father was born of Jewish parents, 120 years ago. The movement to oust Dr. Lewald then took definite form.

In this case the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, generally known as the organ of big business, voiced a protest, in spite of the government domination of the press. It reminds the Hitler government that it should learn to discriminate between recent Jewish immigrants from Russia and Poland and Jews whose families have been rooted in Germany for centuries and who did their full duty as citizens both in peace and war. The paper reminded the government that on his seventeenth birthday Dr. Lewald received from President Hindenburg the highest medal the German Republic bestowed in recognition of work in promoting athletics among German youths.

The establishment of limitations on the number of Jewish lawyers who will be permitted to appear before the courts (in Berlin only 35 out of 2,000) is to be followed by limiting the number of Jewish doctors, surgeons and dentists. Opera houses, theatres and concert halls have been forced to discharge Jewish directors, actors, singers and musicians. The Berliner Tageblatt was compelled to dismiss 117 Jewish employees, whereupon Hitler's own paper commented that "wonders would never cease; even the Tageblatt is becoming anti-semitic."

Famous book publishing firms dare not accept books by authors who are on the Nazi blacklist. Because from America Toscanini, Damrosch, Bodansky, Bauer and Gabrilovitch protested against the treatment of Jewish musicians in Germany, the government issued an order prohibiting the playing of any of their compositions or their gramophone records on radio stations.

Steps are being taken to eliminate Jews as directors in banks, manufacturing plants and other industries. One prominent American in Germany expressed the opinion that if the Nazis actually carry out the contemplated programme it would complete the paralysis of the country.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET
STRONG

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was strong yesterday. Business done: 9,950,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—The momentum of Friday's and Saturday's market continued in full swing during one of the most active sessions since 1929. The market leaders were forced to absorb considerable profit-taking, but such temporary setbacks were more than nullified by new buying. Many stocks registered new highs for the year with industrial and railroad averages the highest since 1931. Tickers were swamped and quotations badly delayed. Continued favourable business news, especially steel, automobiles and favourable carloadings gave further impetus to the market.

The markets in the United States will be closed today, being the Memorial Day holiday.

No quotations will be issued tomorrow, but our office will be open as usual.

TO NERVOUS DRIVERS

Driving was a strain on every one's nerves, particularly in our modern congested traffic. One of the chief worries was caused by concentration on gear changing, double de-clutching and all its attendant worries.

There is only one way to know the confidence that Sychro-Mesh gives and that is to drive the Vauxhall Cadet. It will be a real pleasure to arrange a demonstration.

THOSE WAR DEBTS

Only those in the closest touch with President Roosevelt are able to predict the nature of the Message he proposes shortly to send to Congress regarding war debts. It is generally assumed that he will seek authority for a moratorium. It is believed also that he will ask for a free hand, more or less, in the settlement of inter-governmental debts. It is a problem calling for speedy action. And the settlements reached must be definitive. The statesmen of all nations realise that unless the debts question is disposed of, there is little chance of a successful economic conference. It may, therefore, be taken for granted that President Roosevelt will seek authority to negotiate the best settlement possible. The problem has changed its complexion in the last twelve months. A year ago the revision or otherwise of war debts rested on the justice or injustice of the settlements in the light both of the original transactions and of the increased burdens involved in paying for them. The starting point to-day is decidedly different. Political factors have shifted. And by America's abandonment of gold even the burden of payments is altered. The question is succinctly stated by Mr. Dorsey Richardson in his book, "Will They Pay?" in these terms: "Shall we remain adamant and force default by Great Britain and further default by France, or revise the agreements downward before June 15, or before June 15 begin negotiations for revision, agreeing meanwhile to postponement of the June payments?" Arguments on any other basis miss out the history of the last six months. It is simply not conceivable that the statesmen at Washington will allow war debts to lapse by default. Nor can the cause of amity suffer any more postponement. The world is adrift on a sea of troubles. It is at such times that the highest kind of statesmanship, to use the word from which statesmanship is derived, is called forth—the statesmanship that sees beyond the clamours of home politics. This was the case at Lausanne. Accustomed as was the world to conference failures, the success of the reparations conference came almost as a shock. A similar opportunity is presented at the forthcoming parley. It may be expected to conclude with the same kind of success. Mr. Roosevelt has an advantage over his predecessor in coming to grips with the problem in its new frame of reference. The average American can now afford to meet the debtors with sympathy. Hitherto he has been troubled by uncomposed debts of his own. He has seen his so-called fixed charges creeping higher and higher when contrasted with his income. And, where he has not balked at paying old contracts, he has successfully invoked the intervention of his Government in substituting new contracts. So long as nothing was done about the American debt problem, nothing could be done about the war debts. But, with debts being scaled down all along the line, the attitude of the American debtor in his other role as Europe's creditor must, in all consistency, be more tolerant. This is not to say that the President's task is easy. His is, indeed, one of the thorniest of tasks facing any statesman in modern history.

London en Fete

The Enjoyment Week with which London proposes to celebrate the anniversary of the King's Birthday on June 3 is quite out of the ordinary run of things in Britain. For Britain is not given to setting aside particular days or weeks for special purposes. Despite England's lack of experience, however, in organising these enterprises, Enjoyment Week appears to have excellent prospects. Elaborate plans are foreshadowed: shops, streets and terminal stations will probably be illuminated and decorated, while a procession of gaily festooned cars is also contemplated. The theatres and cinemas are to offer gala attractions, and the Serpentine in Hyde Park will be the scene of boating and swimming competitions. The coming carnival week is not, of course, intended merely for pleasure. It has its serious, economic side, for it will doubtless draw the world's attention to London, not as a business centre or the capital of the British Empire, but as a tourist resort, a place where travellers from other lands may reasonably spend their holidays. If the event attracts tourist traffic to London on a bigger scale than ever before, London will not fail to live up to its advertisement, for with its historic buildings, its memories of Dickens, Thackeray, Lamb, Johnson and many hundreds more, and its multitudinous amusements, London is probably, to the traveller, the most fascinating town in Great Britain. Only in one respect does it fail to make the most of its assets. It has a river which, as Mr. A. P. Herbert constantly reminds the public, it appears to do its best to forget. It is, therefore, interesting to note that in the coming Enjoyment Week the Thames is to play a prominent part, for the river fire brigade is expected to arrange a display with coloured searchlights, and permission of the Admiralty is being sought for a warship to sail up into the heart of the city. This may attract attention to Mr. Herbert's frequent appeals to the London authorities to make the most of their river, and at the same time help to solve the traffic problem by establishing a fleet of river buses. Conditions have greatly altered since such a project met with ill success in 1908, and it is estimated that if 4,000,000 only of the 8,000,000,000 passengers who use the trams and buses of London every year were to employ the river buses the scheme would be financially profitable. In any case, a fleet of river buses would be a great attraction to tourists, for the Thames flows past such centres of historic and artistic interest as St. Paul's, Somerset House, the Customs House, the Temple, the Tate Gallery, the Tower of London, Westminster, and Lambeth Palace. Perhaps no other river in the world can show such a concentration of interest in so small a space.

TEN DAYS IN GERMANY.

HITLER AND HIS DICTATORSHIP

By MILTON BRONNER

Analyzing conditions within Germany after six weeks of Hitler dictatorship there are three inescapable conclusions to be drawn, after a ten-day trip through the country and conversations with responsible sources.

The first is that Hitler will doubtless continue to rule for the four-year period of the prescribed dictatorship.

The second is that there is little likelihood of the Nazis being disturbed by civil war for the simple reason that all opposition forces have been completely shattered.

The third is that Hitler may have come into power much sooner than he actually expected, and was caught unprepared for any thing except the destruction of his enemies. Lacking a programme, after lavish promises, he gave his followers an immediate scapegoat—the Jews—upon whom they could vent their hatred.

Every major action taken by Hitler to date has been directed toward consolidating the Nazi power over every branch of German life. The various decrees taking jobs away from Jews, Socialists and Liberals, mean that these jobs are now held by Hitler followers. From government departments on down to municipalities, universities, schools, and even private business enterprises, this movement has swept.

Meantime what has happened to the Nazi opposition is this: Communism has been driven completely to cover. The Social Democrats are smashed. Many of their leaders have fled to Switzerland, Vienna or Prague, leaving the rank and file entirely dismayed and disgusted. The centre Party (Catholic) accepted the olive branch extended by Hitler in his Reichstag speech. The Catholic Bishops have raised the ban on members of the Church who are Nazis. The trip of Vice Chancellor Von Papen and Minister Goering to Rome means the settlement of all disputes, with the probability that they will arrange with the Vatican for a new concordat, embracing all Germany, and nullifying previous concordats with states such as Bavaria. This would mean that Bavaria will no longer have a minister at the Vatican, but a German legate will represent the entire country.

Vice Chancellor Von Papen, Minister of Economy Alfred Hugenberg and Minister of Finance Franz Seidler are being kept in the government purely to emphasize the "national character" of the cabinet. Should Hitler choose to dispense with them, there is no organization on the outside to protest.

If President Hindenburg should die or should resign, it is thought likely in Berlin that Hitler would become President and Minister-Without-Portfolio Goering would be named Chancellor. Goering is the most powerful man in the government. His stormy speeches and radical acts are popular with the younger Nazis. By comparison with Goering, Hitler seems calm and moderate.

The anti-Jew campaign is being pursued diligently. The family trees of office holders are being examined for traces of Jewish ancestry, if there is any doubt of their removal. An example of this is to be found in the ultimate removal of Dr. Theodore Lewald as chairman of the German Sports Federation. Dr. Lewald is also Chairman of the Olympic Committee for the games to be held in Berlin in 1936. His resignation from this post may be expected. Dr. Lewald was the chief organizer of the German sports movement.

The Very Idea!

WE HAVE A SECRET

By Eddie Kelly, Dumb.

THERE'S so much secrecy about what's going on up North, that we thought it would be a good idea if we could be a bit secret ourselves. In fact, we were going to be so secret that we were going to let you guess what should have been in this column to-day. But the Editor bucked.

There's no connexion between secrets and secretaries. Secrets are things women can't keep. Secretaries are things a lot of men can't afford to keep.

Anyway, what about introducing some more of this secrecy in Hongkong.

At present the only secrets we know are what the Hongkong government is going to do about the water shortage, what the girl friend said to us out on the Repulse Bay road last night, what's going to win the Derby to-morrow, and what we think of Editors who won't give us our own way.

For instance, take the Empire Fair. Now it's all over, the people are complaining about the large crowds that cluttered up the place. They know the remedy. Let them hold the next Empire Fair in camera.

Then, instead of pages and pages of blurb about someone's ointment, the newspapers could come out with blank sheets. Look at all the work it would save the reporters.

Next thing would be to get rid of the spectators. A simple way of doing this would be to hold the Fair at the Peninsula, but advertise it at the Hongkong Hotel, with free drinks thrown in.

In case it leaked out that the Fair was at the Peninsula, it would be a good idea to mount the whole hotel on rollers so that it could be run around the corner if any unauthorised person was caught looking at it.

Then, just in case someone did get in, it would be necessary to put screens around all the exhibits. In the wines and spirits section Eddie Kelly and a few of his pals would make effective screens.

It would be a bit awkward keeping the Telephone Company's exhibit a secret. But perhaps they could arrange to give subscribers the wrong number, and the Telephone could be worked on the Braille principle.

As no-one ever listened to the Empire Fair blurb broadcasts from ZBW this year, it would be quite safe to allow them next year. The rest of this article will be written in camera.

HITHERTO UNPUBLISHED CORRESPONDENCE.

Ma Chere Cesarine,
I thank you so much for the so lovely time you have given me during my sojourn in Hongkong. It is the very beautiful city. You have the so lovely sights, and such funny men. You remember that one outside, what you call it, the Peninsula Hotel. It was so screaming to see him trying to get along, what you say, at a sort of a rolling standstill, n'est ce pas?

What I like so much more than any other was our visit to your beautiful council chamber, the men round the little table were all so solemn and serious. They think so hard they have no time to speak. I do not understand him all the time. Your city must be the great city. All your councillors can read and write; and all of them were sober. I was so surprised. When you come here I will show you our Hotel-de-Ville. It will be a big shock for you. But I think I like him better when you have to stay with him for a long time. Recommend me to your dear Maman ma chere Cesarine, I am,

Your affectionate,
SUSANNE.

SUPER-SALESMANSHIP.

A few days ago speaking about salesmanship, Sir William Crawford told his hearers always to take the customer's point of view and talk about him. There seems a snag about this somewhat. Imagine the Potential Customer approaching the Bright Young Salesman, with this result:

P.C.—I want a new hat.

B.Y.S.—Yes it is about time you throw that thing away.

P.C.—I also want some snappy ties.

B.Y.S.—You look as if you went to a rope shop for your last lot. And if you ask me you want a new suit. That one fits where it touches and even if you haven't got decent shoes you might keep them clean. No don't thank me. Thank Sir William Crawford.

Thank heaven, there are only 180 more shopping days to Christmas.

"BIG BEN"*SURROUNDED BY STEEL TUBES*AFTER 30 YEARS

London.

Scaffolding composed of steel tubes will soon shroud the famous Clock Tower of the Houses of Parliament, in which Big Ben is housed. It is at least 30 years since the tower was completely surrounded by scaffolding in this way.

An immense amount of the steel scaffolding will be needed, for the Clock Tower is 329 feet in height, and the total cost of the repairs now to be carried out is estimated at £76,000. It is expected that a beginning will be made during the summer recess of Parliament.

It was in 1926 that Lord Peel, at that time First Commissioner of Works, issued a memorandum on "The defective condition of the stonework of the House of Parliament," and the cost of the scheme of restoration was then estimated at £1,000,000.

Since then, however, it has been found possible to reduce this estimate somewhat, and in May of this year Mr. Ormsby-Gore, the present First Commissioner of Works, announced in the House of Commons that the cost was then estimated at £760,000.

Already at least a hundred men have been working on the House of Parliament for four years, and it will probably be about ten years more before the task is completed. —Reuter.

REORGANISATION OF COALFIELDS*Latest Movement By Soviets

Moscow, May 22.

Over the signatures of M. Molotov and M. Stalin, a decision of the Council of People's Commissaries and the Central Committee of the Communist Party is published to-day providing for reorganization of the management of mines and trusts in the Don Basin and alterations in the wages of the workers and engineering and technical staffs there.

The decision calls for a simplification of the system of management, furnishes an exact definition of the duties of departmental heads, simplifies the present procedure of fixing production scales, defines exactly progressive and premium payments for labour, and increases wages in a number of categories, including the engineering technical staffs. —Tass.

HIKE ON BIKES*7,000 AUSTRALIANS TAKE PART

Sydney, N.S.W.

Stretched over a distance of two to three miles, the 7,000 cyclists who participate in a "mystery hike on bikes", took half an hour to pass a given spot.

The hike was conducted by the South Australian Cycle Retailers' Association. Led by a silver band on a motor truck, the "hikers" paddled their way to Hazelwood Park, Burside.

So large was the procession of cyclists that all other traffic was held up.

Among the wide assortment of bicycles were the tandem and the "ponny farthing".

A little boy four years of age, covered the whole of the journey, which was about fifteen miles, on his diminutive bicycle, and the oldest cyclist was aged 80. —Reuter.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE*SOVIET DELEGATES APPOINTED

Moscow, May 22.

The delegation of the U.S.S.R. to the World Economic Conference scheduled to open in London on June 12 has been appointed by the Council of People's Commissaries. M. Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, has been named chairman of the delegation, with M. Mezhlauk, assistant chairman of the State Planning Commission, as vice-chairman. The other members of the Soviet delegation are M. Maisky, Soviet Ambassador to London, and M. Ozersky, vice-commissar of foreign trade. —Tass.

BOY OF 16 SENT TO PRISON*FATHER'S REFUSAL TO BE SURETY

As his father declined to stand surety for him while on probation, a boy, 16 years old, Herbert Stubbs, of Etchingham, was sent to prison at Hurst Green, Sussex, for damaging four stained glass windows at Etchingham Parish Church.

The vicar, the Rev. C. Snell, said the windows were the original 600-year-old glass which could never be replaced. There were also heads knocked off angel figures inside the church.

Stubbs was stated to have done the damage with a catapult. The magistrates were about to bind the boy over when the father declined to be surety.

Vain appeals were made to him from the Bench to alter his attitude, and finally the Chairman said they deeply regretted it, but the law allowed them no alternative than to send the boy to prison for two months.

"You know the stigma will be with him for the rest of his life," said the Chairman.

The father: "I can't help that."

When seen by a reporter, the father, Herbert Stubbs, a farm labourer, was very distressed and burst into tears. He said:

"I did not want my boy to go to prison; I did not know what they meant at the court. I had never been in one before."

"I could not find any work for him, and he was always up to mischief as soon as my back was turned."

"He was constantly using a catapult, and I told him it would get him into trouble sooner or later. It is simply mischief. I don't think he had the least idea he was doing anything wrong."

THE RECTOR'S VIEW.

The rector, the Rev. Charles Snell, described it as an extremely sad case.

"I am taking steps when the boy comes out," he said, "to get him under influence and discipline. I wish to put him in the way of making good. I am afraid nothing can be done until he has completed his sentence."

"I would not have prosecuted had they been my own windows," he added. "If they had been I would rather have taken the law into my own hands. These valuable windows have been there for about 600 years. Unfortunately they are the best windows that are damaged and they can never be of the same value again."

When it was pointed out that it was stated in court that the boy had also damaged some angel figures in the church, the rector remarked: "Oh, that is a mistake."

NO POLITICS IN POST OFFICE*LONGER-HOURS-FOR-WOMEN PROTEST

An overwhelming majority at the Conference of the Post Office Controlling Officers' Association, supported the General Council's rule that the Association should conduct its affairs on a non-political basis.

The Liverpool branch desired the amendment that the method should also be the pooling of the ideas and experience of members with a view to the advancement of the public service.

Mr. W. H. Derbyshire (North-Eastern) asked: How was the Association to carry on if they did not go to Parliament?

They might have been able to agree if the Council had spoken of non-party, but non-political could only mean one thing, and reading the minds of the outer London group it meant non-Labour politics.

WOMEN TELEPHONISTS.

The Conference also passed unanimously a resolution proposed by Mr. W. J. Campbell, declaring that the present proposals for the extension of women's hours in the telephone service after 8 p.m. would not lead to an increase in efficiency, and that it was a retrograde step involving a worsening of the conditions of women supervisors.

Mr. Campbell said the response to the circular asking for volunteers, had been 17 in favour out of 6,000. The proposals, he said, were unnecessary.

Mr. E. C. Gates (Manchester) moved a resolution, which was carried unanimously, urging that the business of the Post Office should be extended, particularly in the direction of greater banking facilities.

A dog owned by Mr. J. C. Ferguson, of Stafford Road, Kowloon Tong, attacked Ronald Wong, a Chinese infant, and bit him on the face. The boy was taken to the Kowloon Hospital, and the dog sent to Matakauk.

FEWER MEN & WOMEN IN PRISON*NATION GROWS MORE SOBER

The prison population of to-day is superior in education to the prison population at the beginning of the century, says the annual report on the prisoners of England and Wales.

On this subject Dr. Norwood East, the Medical Commissioner, says:

"Many prisoners to-day are above the average in intelligence, and many others of average intelligence are capable and alert, resourceful and aggressive men of determined character."

"They tend to raise the general mental level in prisons, but create special administrative problems."

MORE LAW-ABIDING NATION.

Men received in prison on conviction in 1931 numbered 32,471, and women 4,964—1,061 fewer men and 512 women than in 1930.

The total for men was, with the exception of 1929, the lowest since 1921, and for women substantially the lowest since 1921.

Sentences for indictable offences (that is, serious offences) accounted for only 26 out of every 100 men received in prison.

Before the war the annual convictions of women for drunkenness numbered over 35,000, and there were about 15,000 imprisonments of women for drunkenness each year.

In 1931 the convictions had decreased to 7,131 and the imprisonments to 2,366.

Dr. Norwood East, discussing the suggestion that psychotherapy might cure many offenders, says:

"It is a travesty to suggest that crime is a disease. But it is clearly the result sometimes of a neurotic disorder."

LYOYD GEORGE AND LEADERSHIP*"HAD JOLLY WELL ENOUGH OF IT"

Strong appeals to Mr. Lloyd George to "lead the Liberal Party back to the right course" was made at the Welsh Liberal Convention at Llandrindod Wells.

In his reply Mr. Lloyd George said he spoke as "one who has had jolly well enough of leadership."

Referring to flattering remarks by a previous speaker, Mr. Lloyd George said: "When he has had as much flattery and condemnation as I have had for the last 50 years, he will be perfectly indifferent to both. I cannot recall five minutes sleep I have lost through either."

He described the resolutions for this month's Liberal conference at Scarborough as "lepid, turgid and arid."

"There is no recovery there," he added, "you cannot revive a drooping party with a mass of husks boiled in lukewarm water perfunctorily stirred. It makes bad porridge and is not much use as a poultice. You must have something with real life and real purpose in it."

What was the good of talking of national development, re-housing or afforestation and then saying you must not spend money?

"WE DEMAND OF HIM."

They must be prepared to invent the national resources which were lying idle. The country would respond to a bold appeal.

Professor Levi, of Aberystwyth, said: "We ask Mr. Lloyd George, as the only stalwart Liberal left in Wales—we demand of him—to lead us back to the right course and as he has saved the country from the enemy abroad to save it now from the enemy at home."

"Are we going to fight the next General Election," asked Professor Levi, "with nothing before us but the miserable policy of Simonism and Samuelism?"

A resolution moved by Councillor J. Morris Jones of Denbigh, calling on the Liberal Party to range itself in opposition to the Government both in and out of Parliament and to adopt a more Radical policy, was carried unanimously. Another resolution urged Liberals to work for the repeal of tariffs.

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR HONGKONG.*SCHEME TO ESTABLISH SOYA FACTORY

A large and up-to-date plant for the concentration of the soya bean industry of the Colony and for the production of its oil and other by-products, is shortly to be established by a group of Chinese businessmen.

The group of businessmen who are about to incorporate themselves into the China Soya Company, is headed by Mr. Tseng Tip, of No. 18, Kennedy Road. They have just acquired a large site 30,000 square feet in area, at Laichikok, on which the new factory will be erected. The total cost is estimated to exceed $100,000.

Mr. Tseng Tip, when interviewed said that although the secret of the soya bean was discovered by China many thousands of years ago, and the Chinese were the greatest consumers, methods for the exploitation of the product by the Chinese themselves were on the most primitive lines, and it was left to a foreign country to carry on where they had left off.

Much of the famous soya bean sauce formerly consumed has been produced by a large number of small concerns whose method of extraction by the old process was far from being perfect. Local manufacturers said Mr. Tseng Tip, could, with advantage to themselves, have copied much of the Japanese method of production.

The Japanese, he said had been quick to realise the many properties of the bean in addition to its nutritive value. A large and increasing export of soya sauce was being carried on with European countries, where its value as a lubricant had been discovered.

Mr. Tseng claimed that the soya bean was gaining new favour in the eyes of European industrialists, who had found it a valuable ally in the preservation of canned foods as well as a new and tasty element in the making of table sauce.

With the establishment of this new industry Mr. Tseng Tip and his business colleagues, envisage the time when the company will have supplied not only all requirements of the Colony and near centres like Canton and Macao, but will have large surplus for export trade with Singapore, the Philippines, Australia, and California where large colonies of Chinese are settled.

The initial output will be limited to two million cabbages of the sauce every year. For this large production, scientific process equipment and machinery will be required. A feature of the new scientific process is that in place of the old method of allowing the beans to dry in the sun before extraction, the beans will be fermented in large covered tanks or vats, and then led through a number of other processes until finally emerging as the refined product.

Excluding Manchuria, vast areas in North China are planted with soya bean, and it is from these fields that the new Company intends to secure its raw material.

Exports who have made a special study of the latest process of manufacture will be employed.

Other products to be included in the activities of the new plant will be preserved ginger fruits, and vegetables, as well as that uniquely Chinese preparation, bean curd.

MORPHIA DISCLOSURE
BY DOCTOR'S WIDOWInquest Story of Drug-Taking

A wife's disclosure that she used to take morphia was made at the Westminster Inquest on Dr. John Theobald Hill, 65, formerly of Limerick, who was found poisoned at Charing Cross Hotel.

A verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was recorded by the Coroner, Mr. Ingleby Oddie.

The doctor's widow, Violet Gladys Hill, a young woman who gave as her address an hotel in Pombridge-square, W., said she had lived apart from her husband for about a year.

The Coroner: Why did you separate?—It was because I used to take morphia.

Have you been cured?—Yes.

Did you get the morphia from his surgery?—Yes.

Where was he practising?—At Tunbridge Wells.

Why did you take morphia?—I had neuritis in the arms. He used to give it to me hypodermically.

Then you got it from his surgery?—Yes.

Her husband had been contributing to her support, she said. He sent a cheque every week.

How long had he been assistant at Beckton-road, Canning Town?—About 12 months.

LAST MEETING.

After the separation, she added, she went into a nursing home. Her husband sold his practice and went to London. She last saw him on the day of his death. He forbade her to see him, but she felt she wanted to.

Mrs. Hill gave her evidence under stress of great emotion, and her voice was almost inaudible.

She said her husband was annoyed at her coming, but there was no quarrel. They parted on the Underground about 5 or 6 p.m. on Saturday.

It was stated that Dr. Hill went to the Charing Cross Hotel on Saturday evening and was found dead in his room on Sunday evening.

Sir Bernard Spilsbury, who made a postmortem, said he found 40 punctured wounds made by a hypodermic needle across the abdomen, and 30 on the left thigh. Death was due to carbolic acid poisoning. Most of the punctures were very recent, and were con-

WOMEN PREACHERS

MUST BE OVER AGE
OF 25

The Archbishop of Canterbury has brought his own diocese into line with others by approving regulations for the special recognition of women's work. These new conditions will permit women, not under the age of 25 and possessing special qualifications, to receive the Archbishop's licence to speak in churches at other times than the regular services.

Dr. Lang explains in his "Diocesan Gazette" that the object of the regulations "is to regularise the work, to give authority and recognition to those engaged in it, and to bring its methods into line with other dioceses which have been foremost in giving it a rightful place in church order."

Where a woman attains the standard for the Archbishop's licence a guarantee will be offered for an adequate stipend for her services.

A woman worker, with the Archbishop's licence to preach, will not be permitted to administer Holy Communion nor conduct any of those services belonging particularly to the clergy.

There are now 248 deaconesses in the Church of England.

slant with having been made just before death.

The coroner showed Sir Bernard a bottle containing a colourless fluid and said: "This must be morphia."

Sir Bernard took it and poured a little on his finger. This he put to his tongue, and then said: "It does not taste at all. I thought it must have been water."

The Coroner: He may have brought it to make up a solution. Mr. David Morris, a solicitor, said he was Dr. Hill's executor. It was obvious that the doctor was in very poor health and was worried about it. He got the impression that Dr. Hill was very deeply attached to his wife.

INCOME-TAX DEMAND.
"On going through his papers," said Mr. Morris, "I found an income-tax demand dated Jan. 6 for £140."

"In the short time he was at Tunbridge Wells I think he was carrying on his practice at a loss. I do not think he even made £140 net profit. If we had known about this we should have got this assessment discharged altogether."

"He had mentioned the possibility of having to go to prison over it. He was very worried about it, but it was absurd because he did not owe a penny of it."

"I do not think he drank to excess, but he certainly had a glass or two of beer in the evening," Mr. Oddie said that an attack of

A YEARSTARTLING U.S.
FIGURES

WORLD'S HIGHEST

New York.

With about 12,000 murders and homicides last year, the United States still leads the civilized nations of the world in the number of homicides, according to The Spectator, an insurance periodical.

Basing his conclusions on reports from 180 cities in the United States, the writer found that the rate was 10.8 per 100,000 of population and did not vary from that of 1931. While the returns for the year are not yet complete, actual figures for the five years beginning in 1927 and ending with 1931 show that 11,206 persons in the country met death by homicide.

"Murder more than ever is becoming an ingenious art, if not a trade, in this country," said the article.

In contrast to the record in the United States he pointed out that the rate for 1931 in England and Wales per 100,000 population was 0.6.

The report concludes that American crime-detecting agencies are "inefficient, helpless or corrupt to a degree that should startle an apathetic public which has become habituated to look on even the most ghastly murder as a matter of course."

The City of Memphis continued to head the homicide list with a rate of 54.2 per 100,000 of population. Seven other Southern cities had rates exceeding 40 per 100,000 of population.

The rates for the five largest cities were Chicago, 12.8; Detroit, 9.6; Los Angeles, 8.4; New York, 8, and Philadelphia 7.8.—Reuter.

Influenza had undoubtedly left Dr. Hill very depressed.

Dr. Max Acland said he bought Dr. Hill's practice and later made him a partner. Dr. Hill owed the money for the partnership. He was hard-working and conscientious.

The coroner said Dr. Hill was much worried about his health and anxious about his financial position.

Recording his verdict, Mr. Oddie said: "I think he was worried to death."

MALCOLM CAMPBELL'S
NEW RIVALRICH YOUNG
MOTORIST

Motor races have another idol, Whitney Straight, the 22-year-old rich Cambridge undergraduate.

In the Junior Car Club's new handicap race at Brooklands driving his 2,514 c.c. Maserati, Straight played a terrific game of hare and hounds with Sir Malcolm Campbell on the famous 4,000 c.c. Sunbeam Tiger.

The race was of 250 miles, and there were 29 competitors. The handicap was novel: the biggest cars had to drive through a series of exceedingly difficult bends, the medium cars had an easier set of bends, and the smallest cars had a circuit with no bends.

Campbell was well on the banking before Straight got going. Then he began his thrill stuff. The first bend, which Campbell was taking at 50 m.p.h. Straight treated with contempt at 70 m.p.h.

The second bend, Straight took 15 m.p.h. faster than Campbell, the crowd roaring its joy as its new idol each lap accelerated to 80 or 90 m.p.h.

HALF-HOUR THRILL.

On the third lap he had almost caught Campbell, when, swooping down from the banking into the straight at over 130 m.p.h. the rear of his car snapped badly. The car looked certain to overturn, but it righted itself and Straight flashed past Campbell, got into the first bend before him, and was almost through the second bend before Campbell had rounded the first curve. And Campbell was averaging nearly 90 m.p.h. for each lap.

For half an hour longer Straight continued the thrill and then had to retire with back axle trouble, leaving Campbell to head the field. Brian Lewis took on the job of "hound," and for an hour there was not ten yards between them. After two hours' running Campbell came into the pits, and Lewis won. Mrs. Wisdom, the only woman driver, was splendidly consistent, lapping at between 80 and 83 m.p.h. for the 250 miles.

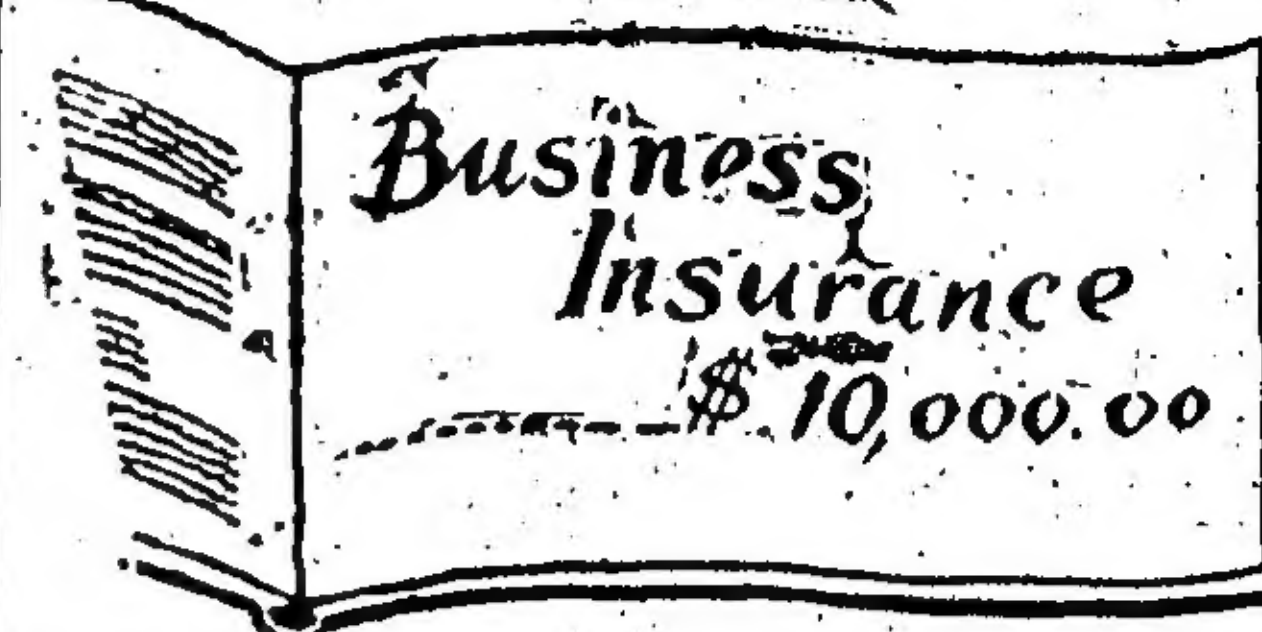

The result was:

1.—Brian Lewis (Alfa Romeo), 2h. 58min. 12sec.; speed, 88.07.
2.—E. R. Hall (M.G. Magnette 1086c.c.), 3h. 9min. 37 2-5sec.; speed, 82.77.

3.—Mrs. E. M. Wisdom (MG Magnette), 3h. 12min. 14sec.; speed, 81.24.

Early in the race Mr. J. C. Elvies's M.G. skidded and overturned. Elvies crawled out with no bones broken.

HERE ARE THE FACTS.

FOR PARTNERSHIPS

1.—Upon the death of one partner it is legally required that the partnership be dissolved immediately to settle the estate. Business Insurance provides the immediate cash to enable the surviving partner to purchase the deceased's interest without drawing upon invested capital, and without being forced to liquidate assets at what might well be an unfavorable moment.

2.—It provides the cash

to guarantee that the deceased partner's heirs will receive full value of his interest in the partnership.

3.—The annual deposits serve to create a sinking fund, which can be used to retire a partner, or to accumulate cash for a future emergency.

FOR COMPANIES

1.—Business Insurance provides the immediate cash to indemnify a concern for the loss of an employee or skilled adviser whose ability is of great importance to the success of the firm.

2.—It provides a cash fund for retirement.

3.—It enhances credit, and is often used as collateral security.

4.—It provides a means of retiring indebtedness through a sinking fund process. Its full face value is payable immediately in cash in the event of the non-survival of the insured, and can be arranged to mature at its full value after a period of years of accumulation.

5.—The cash value of the policy constitutes a hidden reserve, which is available in times of financial emergency.

LOVE OR MONEY?

yet," she said casually. "And you live here!"

"I've lived in Florida," Barry answered, "yet there are snakes there."

"Maybe that's different!"

"Lottie!" Steve turned to her amusedly. "If I asked you very politely to come with me to the high bush now would you go?"

"But would you ask me?" Lottie retorted, cocking her head. "I'm a dangerous blonde. I might compromise you."

"Maybe I wouldn't mind."

Lottie's eyes roved to Barry. Apparently he had not heard this banter. It was the first personal tinge to enter the conversation. Or perhaps Barry had heard! Now he rose, stretched a bit, and, taking leave of the others with a brief nod, sauntered toward the house.

Lottie and Steve, unheeding, were once more adrift in gay banter. Perhaps they would rather be alone but Mona couldn't leave them! It would seem too pointed, too much as though she were following Barry. She would be quiet but she would have to remain.

Remain—for what? And for how long? Barry and Steve would ultimately be leaving Holiday Island and setting out for the mine. Though they seemed in no hurry to leave, it occurred to Mona that they might be delaying their departure until she and Lottie had announced their plans.

Days slid by. More drowsy days filled with sunshine. They all went to Grenada one morning in the launch to bring back supplies. They had lunch on the crest of a hill, Mona and Lottie resting while Steve and Barry sought out carpenters who were to be engaged for work on the hangar.

On these little jaunts Mona was always proud of the boys. In their immaculate linen and pitch helmets they looked like West Indian potentates, as indeed it is possible they were regarded.

"Mona," said Lottie cautiously as they sat together on a wide verandah awaiting Barry's return, "has Barry said—anything?"

Mona's tone was quiet, lifeless. "Anything? I guess you've heard all he has said."

There was a pause freighted with questions. "Has Steve said anything?" Mona asked presently. "Has he ever mentioned Barry and me? Or has he said anything about me? Has he ever mentioned the rush he and Barry were in to leave Twilands a year ago or my marriage or the money I have now—or anything? Has he ever—"

"It's all so queer," Lottie inter-

KOREA REPRISAL

TARIFF INCREASES AS ANSWER TO CHINA

Nanking, May 29.

Chinese press reports state that the Korean authorities intend to raise the import duties on Chinese fabrics of jute, hemp, flax, ramie and other textile fibres as high as thirty to forty per cent. The measure is believed to be a reprisal against the alteration of the Chinese tariff following the termination of the Sino-Japanese tariff agreement.

It is learned that the Chinese merchants are now taking appropriate measures to safeguard their trade in the Korean market.—Reuter.

"I have a sort of feeling that Steve and Barry are waiting for us, perhaps, to open the subject."

"Do you really think that?"

"Maybe," Lottie considered her well-shaped nails meditatively and reined into silence. She laid an affectionate, tender hand on Mona's arm.

"Darling," she went on presently, "why don't you speak to him? After all, you were the offender—"

"I'm the offender," repeated Mona slowly. "Oh, Lottie, it's all the biggest mess! Here we are, guests in their house, upsetting all their plans probably. Getting poor Miss Gracie over to chaperon—"

She likes it. She dotes on it!" Lottie said soberly. "And that, Mona, is our biggest bet!"

"Miss Gracie?"

"Of course. Whose idea was it to bring her here to preserve appearances? Do you suppose appearances would matter or even enter anyone's head down here if you were just an ordinary person to Barry? That boy loves you, Mona! Her tone italicized the statement. "Why don't you give him a chance?"

"Do you think he needs one?" Lottie's glance was withering. "Think he wants one?" Mona pursued.

Lottie nodded firmly. "I do. Let's not waste any more time. Let's help them out somehow. Heaven knows, it's been done before!"

"How can we help them?" "Tonight there's a moon. We'll dress in our prettiest for dinner."

"But we always dress. It seems to be Barry's idea of roughing it at this place to dress as he would on Park Avenue."

"Anyhow we'll dress—put on something especially becoming, smile our sweetest. There's going to be moonlight and a soft breeze. Yes, tonight we're going to make something happen!"

LICENCE REFUSED

RESTAURANT TOO NEAR DANCING ACADEMY

The proximity of a dancing academy to the Excelsior Restaurant was one of the objections raised by Mr. T. H. King, Deputy Inspector General of Police, to the granting of a restaurant-keeper's adjunct licence to Mr. Puran Chand, proprietor of the Excelsior Restaurant, at the meeting of the Licensing Board yesterday.

After the Board had considered the application, the Chairman, (Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern) informed the applicant that there were already sufficient facilities for meals and with drinks in the vicinity of his restaurant. The Board therefore was not prepared to grant the licence.

Others present at the meeting were the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, (Attorney General), Mr. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, Mr. J. M. Wong, Mr. J. L. McPherson, Mr. T. H. King and Mr. H. Owen Davies, (secretary).

Mr. F. G. Nigel, appearing for Mr. Chand, said he understood that from $18,000 to $20,000 has been spent on the premises and nothing had been skimped to make the restaurant at all and proper place for an eating house. Much money would be lost if the licence was not granted. Many people thought it was impossible to eat a meal without drinking something at the same time. He himself had been to the place, and it was very well fitted up.

The Chairman.—The feeling of the Board previously was that there were plenty of places already licensed in that vicinity. What have you to put forward in favour of our issuing another licence.

Mr. Nigel.—I don't believe there are many licences in that part of Des Voeux Road. There may be others on the Queen's Road side, but as far as I am aware, there are very few of them on the Des Voeux road side.

The Chairman.—Do you happen to know, Mr. King.

Mr. King.—There is the Gloucester Building, Hongkong Hotel, Queen's Cafeteria and another in Queen's Road, the King's Restaurant and Lane Crawford's.

Mr. Nigel.—These premises that Mr. King has mentioned seem to be rather out of the beaten track.

Mr. King.—I would like to put before the Board that there are a number of licences in the immediate neighbourhood, and all within a stone's throw of these premises. The amount of money spent, I should think, has nothing to do with the granting or other wise of a liquor licence, and I think the real reason for this application is a desire to keep such a place next to a dancing academy. The dancing academy has been in existence for some time and I don't think the idea of a restaurant and of a liquor licence occurred at first, and I submit there is no need for this licence. I do not want a liquor licence next door or close to this dancing academy.

The Chairman (to Mr. Nigel).—Has your client had anything to do with the liquor licence business before?

Mr. Nigel.—He has been connected with the Peninsula Hotel.

The Chairman.—In what connection?

Mr. Nigel.—I believe it was not in connection with the liquor licence, but with the building department of the hotel. He also has a manager.

With regard to Mr. King's reference to the dancing academy, Mr. Nigel said.—The girls are forbidden to leave the academy before 11 o'clock, which is long after the hour the licence expires. I believe during the day there is little doing in the academy. It is also very unlikely that they will attract people from the academy, seeing that they will be closed long before the academy.

After the Board had considered the question, the Chairman said that the Board was of the opinion that there were at present sufficient facilities for meals and drinks in that locality, and was not prepared to grant the licence.

Two Transfers.

The Board granted an application by Mr. R. H. Waller for the transfer of St. Francis Hotel's licence from Mr. J. C. H. Rye to himself. It was stated that a new company had purchased the building.

Mr. C. North's application for a transfer of David's Cafe licence from Mr. G. Gabriller to himself was also granted. Mr. North stated that he had been assistant manager for Mr. Gabriller, and had bought the business.

FALSE HAWKER'S CHOP

POLICE MYSTERY UNSOLVED

How a false chop was entered in the Hongkong Police Itinerant hawkers' register, which is kept under lock and to which only one clerk has access, and the use of a Police chop, kept solely by the Police Secretary, remain mysteries.

Before Mr. Wynne Jones in the Central Police Court yesterday, Li Piu, holder of a food stall in Cross Street, was charged with obtaining $40 from Chan Fui, by issuing a forged hawkers' licence. He was similarly charged in respect of $32 each received from Mak Ping and Chan Wing-kun.

The Magistrate convicted defendant on the first charge and adjourned sentence to to-day.

Detective-Sub-Inspector Fender conducted the prosecution and Mr. Hin-shing Lo defended. Ho Ping-lam, a Police messenger, and Lo Yat were discharged, there being no evidence against them.

Inspector Fender said that in March this year, Mr. T. H. King, Deputy Inspector General, received information that certain members of the Police department were issuing forged hawkers' licences.

Principal Chinese Detective Wong Lau was detailed to make enquiries, and these resulted in the arrest of the defendant, and the subsequent discovery of one of the victims.

In evidence, Chan Fui, of 163 Johnston Road, said that he asked the defendant to get him a hawkers' food licence in the second month this year.

His Worship.—Why did you ask him to do that?

Witness.—I had applied for a licence before but I could not get it. I applied to the licence inspector at Central Police Station in the first month last year.

What made you think he could get you a licence?—Because I heard that he was able to get a licence.

Witness stated he knew the fee for a hawkers' licence was $4. He gave defendant four copies of his photograph, one of which was placed in the licence, issued in the name of Lau Ka, which name defendant told him (witness) to use if he should be questioned by the Police. He paid $40, in the presence of his master, Tang Chung, a deaf hunchback.

The Police messenger, who turned King's evidence, said he had been told to put seals on photographs in licences as the officer-in-charge had no longer a fold for that job. He discovered ten days

DEATH INQUIRY.

CORONER DISAGREES WITH JURY'S VERDICT.

A verdict of death due to the negligence of a Chinese driver was returned by the jury at a Coroner's inquest held yesterday afternoon at the Kowloon Magistracy before the Coroner, Mr. H. R. Butters.

The inquiry was held into the circumstances surrounding the death of a young Chinese boy, Cheong Ng, who died on May 4 this year, after having been knocked down by a Shing Mun Water Scheme bus on the Tai Po Road.

The jury consisted of Mr. C. Thwaites (foreman), Mr. Wei Tat and Mr. L. G. Cordeiro.

The first witness, Dr. J. B. Mackie of the Kowloon Hospital said that on May 5 he conducted a post-mortem on Cheong Ng. The body was identified by the father, Cheong Ping, a brother, Cheong Leuk and a playmate, Chan Chung Man. Externally, there was blood on the ears, eyes and nose. Internally, the skull was extensively fractured. Death was due to the fracture on the base of the skull.

Father's Evidence.

Cheong Ping, the boy's father, gave evidence that his son had attended the Yuk Tan School in Cheung Sha Wan Road. The family lived in a gardener's mat-shed on the Tai Po Road.

Mr. S. S. Brown, employed in the Shing Mun Water Scheme, said that on May 5 he left Shing Mun a little after 5 o'clock in the Shing Mun Water Scheme bus, accompanied by four other employees and the Chinese driver, Ip Shun. Witness sat in front with the driver. The accident occurred on the Kowloon side of Kwelin Street. Witness saw two boys on the pavement and after tugging at his playmate's coat, gave a half-pivot and dived across the road. The bus, which was going at 25 m.p.h., sounded the horn and swerved to the left but caught the boy with the rear mudguard. The boy was knocked to the ground and his brother then dragged him back across the bus and assisted the boy and later reported the case to the police. He did not see any other car at the time of the accident.

Mr. S. Saunderson and two others, who were in the bus at the time of the accident, also gave evidence.

Ip Shun, the driver, declared that he was going at 15 m.p.h. when the boys dashed out from the pavement. He said that deceased ran into the bus.

Chan Chung Man and Cheong Leuk, friend and brother of deceased, both alleged that there were two cars. The second, the Shing Mun Water Scheme bus, was attempting to overtake the first car when the accident happened.

Speedometer Tested.

Sergeant A. M. Scrimm gave evidence of finding the boy's body and the car at the scene of the accident. He tested the tender and found that though the brakes were in excellent condition, the speedometer was out of order.

The Coroner, in his summing up, pointed out that on one hand the jury had heard the evidence of those present on the tender and on the other hand, the evidence of the two small boys. There was also the evidence given by Sergeant Scrimm. From the police evidence, it appeared to him that the blood track commenced 18 feet out from the road on the west side.

The tender witnesses said that there was no other vehicle about at the time of the accident and the two boys had said that there were two cars.

The Coroner thought that if the jury found that the boy had been

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

CHAUFFEUR CHARGED WITH HITTING CONSTABLE

Wong Hol, chauffeur to Mr. H. R. Rowan of Sheko, was convicted on a charge of technical assault on an Indian police sergeant by Mr. Indian police sergeant by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday. The summons arose from an incident outside King's Theatre on May 3. A fine of $5 was imposed.

A further summons for driving negligently was dismissed, but defendant was warned that his action in turning a large car in a crowded thoroughfare and with an obscured vision, was very unwise.

Evidence was given by an Indian sergeant that about 7 a.m. he saw a private car, coming along Queen's Road from east to west. The car stopped outside the King's Theatre, picked up some passengers, and backed across the road hitting witness in the back and almost knocking him down. A constable on duty nearby went to the side of the car and asked the chauffeur for an explanation. In reply, the defendant hit him on the chest with his fist. Witness did not hear the horn of the car sounded.

The constable, in evidence stated that he merely asked the driver why he did not look behind him and give a warning, when he was struck on the chest.

In reply to defendant, witness denied that he slapped his face.

Sergeant Baldry said he witnessed the incident and did not see the constable provoke the driver. Col. T. A. Robertson a passenger in the car, gave him his name and he allowed the car to proceed to avoid further confusion of the traffic.

Col. Robertson of the Hongkong Club, said he was seated next to the driver and in the rear of the car were his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Rowan. The car backed slowly and he was unaware that anything untoward had happened, until the vehicle appeared at the side of the police. The chauffeur threw the policeman's hand off in a manner that was not intended as a blow. Witness said he felt no jar and though evidence had been given that a man was hit by the car, he thought it was improbable. Defendant was very silly in trying to turn the car in such a crowded thoroughfare.

Defendant gave evidence and said he sounded his horn, backed the car slowly, did not hit the sergeant, did not strike the constable, and was himself slapped on the face.

Mr. Rowan said that after the incident he heard "some conversation in a language I did not understand" between the chauffeur and the constable. The passengers must have obscured the chauffeur's view in the mirror.

knocked down by the car travelling at 20 to 25 m.p.h. then a verdict could be brought in of death by misadventure. There was no doubt in his mind that the boy had been struck by the Shing Mun Water Scheme tender.

The jury, after consideration, returned with the verdict that death was due to the negligence of the Chinese driver.

Mr. Butters: Do you consider the negligence amounts to criminal negligence?

Foreman: No.

Mr. Butters: Personally, I must say that if the matter had been left to me, I could have found no evidence of negligence.

AMERICANS WED.

MR. E. E. BOMAR AND MISS M. R. CARTER

The marriage was solemnised at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, on Friday of Miss Mary Rowland Carter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas Carter of 2107 Carlisle Road, Baltimore, U.S.A., and Mr. Edward Earle Bomar the son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Bomar of Tryon, U.S.A.

The Rev. W. Walton Rogers, the Vicar of St. Andrew's Church, officiated.

The bride was given away by Capt. J. J. Cadogan of the U.S. President Polk, while Miss Bernice Black of Palo Alto, California, was bridesmaid.

Mr. M. Karichuck, of Manila was best man.

A reception was later held at 2, Conduit Road, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Will Greene, and the bride and bridegroom later left for Regulus Bay Hotel on their honeymoon.

GANDHI'S THREE WEEKS' FAST ENDED

Poona, May 29.

Mahatma Gandhi has adhered to his fixed intention of fasting for 21 days in the cause of the untouchables. He broke his fast at noon to-day, after having eaten nothing since May 8, by sipping a few drops from a tumbler of orange juice.

The house of Lady Thackersey, where he has been keeping his fast, was besieged by friends and journalists as noon struck. Mrs.

PERSISTENT HEADACHES.

Persistent headaches, which do not give way to ordinary headache treatment, and which are usually signs of defective vision, are usually brought about by an impoverished condition of the blood.

Nervous derangement of all kinds, including headaches, backaches, pains in limbs and insomnia, are best eliminated by tonic treatment through the blood. Most digestive troubles also are traceable to nerve weakness and thus form part of that group of ailments which has anaemia (impoverished blood) as the primary cause.

A treatment recommended by thousands of people all over the world, who have experienced its merits, is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This splendid blood-building, nerve-strengthening tonic is unique in that it contains elements which are easily assimilable and which rapidly oxygenise the blood, thus enriching, purifying and increasing the supply. Sufferers from loss of vitality and vigour, in aches, backaches, pains in joints, dizziness and palpitation, pallor and loss in weight, nervousness, insomnia, digestive troubles, all results of poor blood, will find speedy and permanent relief in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the proved blood and nerve tonic. All chemists can supply you.

Naidu stood at the head of the stairs and selected the privileged to enter.

Monnwhite, in a small room behind glass doors, Gandhi lay motionless on a bed with wet cloths around his head. Beside him was half a glass of fruit juice.

His bed was then brought into a larger room, where he acknowledged the greeting of his friends.

MANGANESE IN SIBERIA

MINING NOW BEING CARRIED OUT

Moscow.

The presence of manganese deposits in Siberia was known as far back as the year 1900, but they were not developed because of the great distance from the then-existing metallurgical centres.

The development of the iron and steel industry in the Stalinsk (former Kuznetsk) Basin has entirely changed the situation, and the mining of manganese is now being carried out at the Mazul village.

Construction of the Mazul manganese mines was started last year. The beds are horizontal and can be mined from the surface without particularly great mechanization.

It is estimated that with the employment of some 600 miners it will be possible to produce there 120,000 tons of manganese a year, thus supplying fully the needs of the open-hearth furnaces at the Stalinsk works. A branch railway is being constructed, and production is now being conducted on a commercial scale.

The total reserves of Mazul manganese ore are estimated at 1,200,000 tons. Development of this mine will obviate the necessity of importing manganese from the Chinturi deposits in Transcaucasia.

Girl Singer Faints Before the King and Queen

While singing before the King and Queen, Miss Elizabeth Aveling, the senior pupil at the Royal College of Music, fainted and fell at the conductor's feet.

The concert, which took place at the Royal College of Music, was in celebration of the jubilee of the College. The opening item was an Ode by Swinburne, which was set to music by Dr. Charles Wood, especially for the opening of the present College building by King Edward on May 2, 1894. It is for soprano solo chorus and orchestra, and was being conducted by Mr. Reginald Jacques, of Oxford.

During the singing of the opening verse by the choir, Miss Aveling, who was dressed entirely in white, looked very pale. She sang the second verse alone and suddenly fell forward in the middle of the last line.

—THEN CARRIED ON.—
Two violinists hurried from the orchestra and raised her up, and she actually managed to complete the line. She was then helped from the platform, and the director of the College, Sir Hugh Allen, hurried to her.

In a very few moments Miss Aveling recovered, returned to the platform, and sang the third verse of the Ode. Her courage was rewarded by loud applause.

Miss Aveling is the daughter of the Registrar of the College, Mr. Claude Aveling, and although still a scholar, has made several public

"SWEATING" CHARGE—
AND A DENIAL

A protest against preachers' salary cuts was made at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of England at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The Rev. Eric Phillip, Manchester, objected to the scale recommended by the Home Church Committee, which would, he said, involve reductions in salaries of over £20, and in one case of not less than £75.

If other Churches, he continued, liked to sweat their labourers, he did not see why the Presbyterian Church should do so, and if economy was necessary it ought not to be at the expense of the worst paid people in their churches.

Dr. Gillies, of Bath, maintained that it was not right to say that they were not paying a living wage. The new scales were agreed to.

The whole of this jubilee celebration programme was of music written and performed by students and ex-students of the college.

Sir Landon Ronald, who was a student and member of the Orchestra from 1887 to 1891, was given a wonderful reception when he appeared to conduct the exhilarating "Jupiter" movement from "The Planets," by Gustav Holst. The other ex-student conductors who, in addition to the director, Sir Hugh Allen, took part in the concert were Sir Dan Godfrey, Dr. John Ireland, Major Geoffrey Toye and Mr. Arthur Bliss.

STITCHES IN HEART TRIBUTE TO SKILL OF SURGEON

One of the most remarkable operations in modern surgery, performed by Dr. Norman Barrett at St. Thomas's Hospital, was described at an Inquest at South-work on Edgar Ernest Crichton, aged 29, a porter at Nine Elms Goods Station.

It was stated that Crichton accidentally received a knife wound in the chest in a scuffle with a man who was holding a knife which he used in his work.

FIGHT AGAINST TIME.
Dr. Barrett said the blade of the knife had penetrated the apex of the heart. The man practically was dying when admitted. The hemorrhage was extensive. Three-quarters of a pint of blood were removed from the pericardium. He placed three or four stitches in the heart muscles while the heart was still beating.

The whole operation was a desperate fight against time, but fortunately he could not save the man's life. The operation lasted three-quarters of an hour and was one of extreme difficulty.

The coroner, Mr. Douglas Cowburn, said that to put three or four stitches into the heart muscles while it was still beating, as Dr. Barrett had done, was a surgical achievement which reflected the utmost credit upon him.

The jury returned a verdict of death by misadventure.

HUGH OPIUM SEIZURE CUSTOMS COUP OFF CASTLE PEAK

A seizure of 13,770 taels of raw opium, valued at $41,000, aboard the s.s. Kwong I, off Castle Peak on Saturday night, while the ship was entering Hongkong from Wuchow, led to the appearance before Mr.
Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning of Chan Ning, coxswain, Chan Ming, engineer, Tsang Chi-ting, comprador, and Yip Tam-po, tallyman.
Mr. Hin-shing Lo pleaded guilty on behalf of the tallyman but entered denials on behalf of the other three defendants. Second defendant was subsequently discharged.
Chief Preventive Officer J. W.
Buller, prosecuting, said that the Kwong I was a small cargo boat which plied between Wuchow and Hongkong. The place of the seizure was a short distance past Castle Peak near the Brothers
Island. The ship was east of Sau Chau. After firing one shot, the Revenue officers boarded the ship which appeared to have made no perceptible motion for three-quarters of an hour. The opium was concealed in twelve sacks, each of which had iron bars tied to their necks. The sacks lay on the deck.
In statements later, first defendant said the ship had engine trouble at Sau Chau, while the second man said that the engine broke down in Chinese waters. The third man made no statement, and fourth defendant also stated the ship was stopped in Chinese waters for fifteen minutes owing to engine trouble.
C.P.O. Buller pointed out that the place of seizure was well within British waters, and to this Mr.
Lo agreed. In order to get to the engine room or stokehold, said Mr.
Buller, one had to walk over the sacks.
His Worship—The only deduc-tion I can draw is that everybody knew the sacks were there as they lay openly on the deck.
The hearing was adjourned until Thursday afternoon.

RAIN AS POLICEMAN Mr. Wynne-Jones' Court sat at 10.05 this morning and rose at 10.45, there being only ten cases on the list. "The rain is a good policeman," remarked Sub-Inspector Smith, in reply to a humorous reference by his Worship.

CREDITORS MEET IN BERLIN

MARK BOND SCHEME BEING STUDIED

CATASTROPHIC ALTERNATIVE

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic
Message Ordinance, 1901. Received May 30, 12.15 p.m.)

Berlin, May 30.
Forty foreign bankers met privately at the Reichsbank today to begin discussion of the problem of how Germany is to continue paying foreign credits in foreign currencies.

The meeting was specially called in view of the scarcity of foreign currencies available for debt payments and of Germany's dwindling gold reserves.
Herr Schacht, the Reichsbank
President, repudiated any intention by Germany to propose a reduction of the debt or to lower the interest rates.

NO MORATORIUM

He said that no moratorium for payment in marks will be demanded. The sole problem was how to convert marks into foreign currencies.

He revealed that Germany's currency coverage in gold and foreign currencies had dropped to eight per cent, and the banker said that the situation was so grave that further withdrawals must result in inflation with catastrophic consequences.

"MARK BONDS"

In the meantime a scheme for the issue by Germany of "Mark Bonds" which will be handed over instead of foreign currencies to meet interest and amortisation charges on her foreign debts, is receiving the special attention of Germany's foreign creditors.

According to the Berlin newspaper Boersen Courier, the bonds will bear four per cent. interest. One quarter states that they will bear the Government's guarantee and another source expresses the view that they will be actually State Bonds, which will imply participation by the Reich in Germany's commercial obligations.

The bonds will be realisable abroad.—Reuter.

PRESIDENT RESISTS AMENDMENT

Washington, May 30.
Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, has announced that both he and President Roosevelt are opposed to the amendment to the Arms Embargo Bill, providing that the prohibition of the export of arms shall apply to both sides to a dispute.

Mr. Hull points out that this would not conform with the doctrine enunciated on behalf of the Administration by Mr. Norman

RACING DRIVER SERIOUSLY ILL

SIR HENRY BIRKIN IN HOSPITAL

BURNED BY EXHAUST PIPE

London, May 29.
Sir Henry Birkin, the well-known racing motorist, is seriously ill in a London nursing home, following injuries to his arm which came into contact with the red-hot exhaust pipe of his motorcar when competing in the Tripoli Grand Prix three weeks ago.

Sir Henry Birkin has been one of England's foremost racing drivers and designers since the war.

Having designed a number of cars in which expert drivers won important prizes, he accumulated a fleet of his own—a kind of private "stable" in Hertfordshire managed by a "trainer".

BRILLIANT DRIVER.

He also drove cars in contests himself, winning in 1929 with Capt. Barnato the 24-hour endurance race at Le Mans, achieving the most remarkable British performance in the Ulster Tourist Trophy race, and in April 1930, making a new record at Brooklands by covering a lap of 2 1/4 miles at 135.33 m.p.h. in an all-British Bentley against Kaye Don's 134.2 m.p.h.

Immediately after this he flew to France and accomplished one of the most sensational feats ever witnessed in the 24-hour endurance at Le Mans.

SPEED DUEL.

Britain was represented by 5
Bentleys and Birkin, driving one of them, had an extraordinary duel of speed with Caracciola, a German driving a Mercedes-Benz.
For hours he set the German such a terrific pace that eventually the latter's car gave out and he had to retire. During part of the fierce contest, Birkin was driving with part of the tread worn off a tyre.

Soon afterwards it burst and Birkin also had to drop out, but he had achieved his object of giving the British team the lead.
In August 1930, after winning a race at Brooklands, he was disqualified on the ground that he had passed on the wrong side of a safety line. As a protest he resigned from the Brooklands Club.
In 1931, his father died and he succeeded to the baronetcy, his elder brother having been killed in the war. His only other brother was killed in a motorcycle racing crash in 1927.

Washington, May 29.
The income tax revelations during the Senate's investigations into the operations of the Morgan Company are leading to enquiries in other directions.

Mr. Andrew Mellon, one of the wealthiest men in the United States, a former Secretary to the Treasury and American Ambassador in London until President Roosevelt's assumption of office, is to be asked for a statement.

Mr. Ogden Mills, who succeeded
Mr. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury Department, may also be requested to supply information regarding his income tax pay-

RESOLUTION SUBMITTED.

A resolution requiring reports from Mr. Mellon on his income tax assessments and his income tax payments, and on the income tax assessments and payments by the two hundred companies connected with the Mellon family fortune be-

Nairobi, May 29.
The successful conclusion of the Mahatma Gandhi's 21-day fast lends added point to an occurrence at a Hindu temple here, when Untouchables, for the first time in East African history, were allowed to enter.

The temple doors, which had been locked by the trustees, were opened to permit the wife of a high-caste Hindu to enter.
Immediately thereafter, a large procession organised by the Kenya Gandhi Association, arrived, upon the scene, the party including a large number of men and women Untouchables, who attended in response to an invitation to enter the temple.

NO DEMONSTRATION.

The majority of the trustees of the temple favoured the innovation although some continued to oppose.
The Untouchables entered the temple without any sign of a hostile demonstration.

A further step towards the carrying out of Gandhi's wishes was taken by another Hindu institution, which organised a luncheon at which several Hindu leaders entertained a number of Untouchables.—

PRINCE DEPUTISES FOR HIS MAJESTY

Rheumatism Still Causing Discomfort

London, May 29.
The Prince of Wales, who deputised for the King at to-day's last levee of the season, will probably take the place of His Majesty for the Trooping of the Colour on Saturday and will ride along the Mall at the head of the Guards after the ceremony.

The King's general health continues good, but owing to rheumatism in the left shoulder, the wearing of full uniform still causes discomfort. His Majesty will be sixty-eight on Saturday.—British Wireless.

GOLD STANDARD BILL

PASSED BY HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Washington, May 29.
The Bill for abolishing the gold standard was passed by the House of Representatives to-day by 285 votes to 67 after the debate had been limited to three hours.

The House rejected several Republican amendments, including one for restricting its provisions to a period of two years, and another for preventing it from being retroactive.—Reuter.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATE INVITED

Washington, May 29.
President Roosevelt has invited Senator Cushman of Michigan to be a United States delegate at the World Economic Conference.
Senator Cushman is the only Republican delegate.—Reuter.

ANOTHER PIRACY

FIFTH WITHIN FEW DAYS

REFUGEES' SAD PLIGHT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic
Message Ordinance, 1901. Received May 30, 7.55 a.m.)

Shanghai, May 29.
The fifth piracy to take place in Chinese coastal waters within a few days is reported.

The steamer Hoswun, belonging to the Dah Tung Steamship Company at Newchwang, who had another boat pirated and four British officers captured a few weeks ago, was the victim of the latest outrage.

According to advices the sea robbers of the Hoswun followed the usual habits of Chinese pirates.

THE MAIN SUFFERERS.

They secreted themselves as passengers and acted in unison.
They held up the passengers and ship's officers in one part of the vessel while they methodically looted cargo and valuables from persons aboard.

The main sufferers are said to be some eighty refugees from Tientsin who lost all they had.

The pirates took three hours to pile up their ill-gotten gains in sampans for removal to the shore.

PORTUGAL'S NEW DESTROYER

KEEL LAID BY THE PREMIER

Lisbon, May 30.
The Prime Minister, Dr. Salazar, dressed like one of the workmen, from whom he received an exceedingly enthusiastic welcome, laid the keel of the new destroyer, Dna, to-day.—Reuter.

SOVIET GUNBOAT ACTIVITY

CHARGES MADE BY MANCHUKUO

Harbin, May 30.
It is officially stated that Soviet gunboats in the Sungari Delta and Amur River continue firing on searching and detaining Man-chukuo shipping.—Reuter.

SEVERE STRICTURES ON CHINA

ELOQUENT RADIO ADDRESS

New York, May 29.

An impassioned appeal for understanding of Japan's difficulties in the Far East was made this evening by Viscount Ishii, in an address broadcast throughout the United States.

The Japanese leader paid a tribute to President Roosevelt as keen but sympathetic, firm but fair.
He reiterated that the traditional friendship between Japan and the United States remained unshaken by recent events in the Far East.

RUSSIAN PROBLEM.

Speaking of the "peculiar difficulties, the plight with which we have to cope in the Far East...
...the struggle against the forces of disruption and making inroads in regions in which we have vital interests—so vital as to affect our very existence, remember that these regions are continuous to a vast country whose aim is to subvert and destroy the ideas and institutions which you, we and most of the civilised world consider essential, even sacred."

CHINA.
"Remember, too," said Viscount Ishii, "those regions are also continuous to another vast country, where chaos reigns supreme, where lawlessness is law and where misrule is the rule."
"It is Japan's misfortune to have such countries as neighbours and Heaven knows how hard we have tried to get along with them."
"We shall continue to try to do so, but the difficulties and troubles inherent in this situation are as numerous as they are serious."—

DAME FASHION'S WHIMS

1863—The Civil War girl in charming holiday bonnet .... its black taffeta crown swathed in ostrich feathers with gay flowers peeping through.

1873—Saucy! ... this plumed hat of dark straw with just enough brim to shadow the brow and wisplike crown revealing the proud wearer's hair.

1883—This demure bonnet charmed the beaux of 50 years ago! ... Straw, it was, with chin string ... its soft gray silk covering trimmed with sky pink roses.

1893—Dashing was this chic sailor with pert crown and brim ... given a spirited gesture by the sweep of ostrich feather at the side.

Ham for the Meat Course

At present it is possible to buy an excellent cut of ham for less than one has to pay for the better joints of beef and mutton, so now is the time to try to follow recipes and delight your household with something novel and very savoury and appetising.

Casserole of Ham
Soak a 1½ lb. cut of ham in water overnight, then cut it in small pieces and place in a casserole. Chop 2 onions and slice 2 apples, cover the ham with these, sprinkle with ½ oz. brown sugar, and on the top put 1½ lb. small potatoes, peeled. Add 3 tencupful stock, a dessertspoonful tomato catsup, and 4 peppercorns, tied in muslin.

Put the lid on the casserole and bake in a very moderate oven for about 1½ hours. After the dish has cooked for 1 hour remove the lid of the casserole so that the potatoes may brown. Before serving, remove the peppercorns and sprinkle the top with chopped parsley.

Ham With Spaghetti
Boil a tencupful spaghetti till tender, and drain. Place a large slice of lean ham in a casserole, cover with spaghetti, then with sliced onions, and lastly with thinly sliced potatoes, seasoning each layer with salt and pepper as you go along. Cover all with milk, sprinkle the top liberally with grated cheese, and bake in a rather slow oven for three hours.

Ham Mousse
This delicious dish is made from left-overs of boiled ham. Mince about ½ or ¾ lb. cooked ham and add 3 tablespoonfuls browned breadcrumbs, a tencupful good stock, a dessertspoonful finely-chopped parsley, pepper and salt to season, and the beaten yolks of 2 eggs.

Beat the 2 egg whites very stiffly, fold them lightly into the mixture, and pour into a mould, previously well-buttered and coated with breadcrumbs. Stand the mould in a tin containing water, and bake in a good oven for about ¾ hour. To serve, turn out and pour tomato sauce over.

This cold dish is excellent for serving on a specially busy day, as both potato and ham may be cooked in advance. Peel 1½ lb. potatoes and cook them carefully so that they do not break. When cool enough to handle cut them into dice, and cut ½ lb. cooked ham into small pieces. Place these two ingredients in a bowl, add a tencupful chopped onion and a little cress, and mix with a generous amount of rather thin mayonnaise. Serve in a glass bowl after sprinkling the surface with finely-chopped parsley, or arrange on lettuce leaves on individual plates.

Plain Rounded Neck-Lines for New Gowns

(From A Paris Correspondent)

In the latest collections, it was noticeable that the plain bodices, either with rounded neckline guillemé of trimming, or the high throat collar, is stressed. Wraps are often of contrasting colour. The vogue for two-colour costumes has resulted in "ensembles" that have nothing to link them together save a subtle harmony of construction, or maybe a belt or a scarf that may be interchangeably worn with coat or frock.

Suits of all kinds, from the classic tailor-made to the soft silk dressmaker suit, are much worn for all daytime occasions. Coats are of all lengths, bolero, waist-length, hip, wrist, or finger-tip length, three-quarters, seven-eighths, or long. It is entirely a question of the time, the place, and the girl. The decided tendency, however, is towards abbreviation.

Capelets and cape-sleeves are very logical accompaniments of the natural figure, because, by widening the shoulders, they make the waist look small. The cape sleeves, though adorable, have already spread so rapidly that they constitute almost a leg-o-mutton menace.

CHAPTER XLII

The days drifted by. Long, sweet, drowsy days followed by long, cool evenings. Mornings, after early coffee, the four would go to the beach for a swim in the green-blue water that flooded the sand with transparent depths. Protected by the palm trees, they would rest on the sand, blinking at the glare, drinking the milk of fresh coconuts gathered by the inevitable native boys.

The girls rarely saw Bud. Ever on the alert, even in this drowsy heat, Bud was dashing for supplies in the boat, rising early and repairing to the section of the island set apart for the airport, swimming alone, his bronzed body graceful and swift in the leaping foam.

Bud ate any time, anywhere he happened to be from deliciously filled trays prepared by old Maria. Barry and Steve, in white linen and pith helmets, were frequently summoned to settle questions at the airport. Frequently in the cool of the morning, they golfed. They would disappear immediately after the 11:30 luncheon, or "breakfast," as they called it, ostensibly to sleep but frequently to figure on paper, to discuss matters at the mine, to attend to correspondence.

The flamboyants about the house blossomed, covering the rear facade with a shower of petals at every gust of breeze.

Holiday House, Mona found, was the only estate on the island and Holiday Island comprised 25 square miles. A fringe of native huts, close by but hidden in a tunnel of trees, accommodated the corps of servants.

"This place, here?" Barry repeated, in response to Mona's timid query. She still felt ill at ease with him and the conversation between them had never veered from generalities. He looked about affectionately at the huge house flanked with its veritable Eden. "Oh, it's just an old plantation house. They used to raise sugar here for the market, when there was one. Too much dieting nowadays!"

"Well," said Lottie, "maybe we diet but you like us better, don't you, than if we looked like Miss Gracie?"

Miss Gracie was a recent importation from Port of Spain, invited out of deference to conventions. She was a sort of official chaperon, the sister of a college professor with a family of instructor sons. At the moment the house was in her capable hands. Seated on the terrace, they could hear Miss Gracie giving orders to the servants, who adored her.

"Maybe buccaneers lived in the house," Barry went on. "I don't know. Anyhow it has been pretty much a one man's island all the while."

They were seated on the terrace at the tea hour which brought the four together, refreshed and freshly garbed, after the exigencies of the morning.

Barry gazed with pride at the house, rising above the surrounding shrubbery, a house wide-roomed, ample and high-towered. Overlooking the sea as it did in a wide sweep, buccaneers of old might well have set their watch there.

"Whoever lived here kept slaves," Steve said idly. "It's a funny thing. I could live in New York all my life and study at school about the slaves in the south but no visit to Harlem ever got me very much excited. But here! Just the thought of slaves working under this broiling sun burns me up."

"The slave owner here," Barry went on, "resorted to that rotten trick they learned in St. Lucia and in Martinique. They brought over the fer-de-lance to keep the slaves from running away!"

"Running away?" Lottie's eyes were wide. "How could they do that? Where would they run to?" "They'd run mostly to the high bush. That section pretty well grown up, that you see for miles beyond the golf course. There are waterfalls in there, they tell me, though we've never come upon one. Well, the slave owners thought the slaves would streak for the bush. They were always superstitious too, believed the slaves had superhuman ways of getting messages to each other from island to island. But they couldn't work any of their magic here in plain sight on the sugar cane fields so the snake, the fer-de-lance, was planted in the bush."

"The snake was supposed to drive them back?" asked Mona.

"To frighten them back! To keep them out of the bush entirely. It was a bad move, though. The fer-de-lance killed more white men than it did slaves. They had to bring over the mongoose to destroy it."

"Are there any of them left?" asked Lottie fearfully.

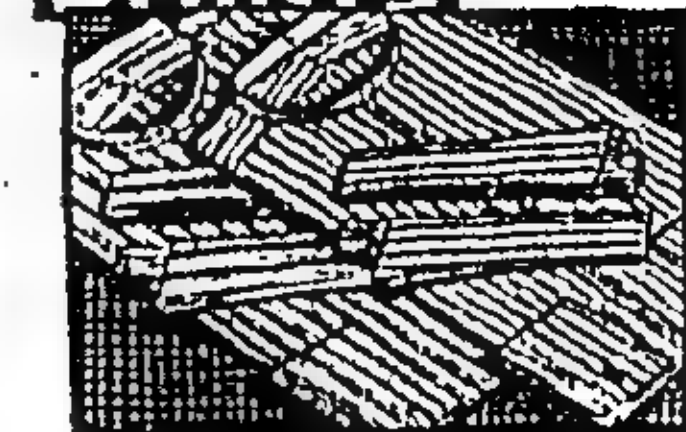

"Now? I don't believe so. The man who sold us this island said his father had seen one years ago and the butcher at Barbuda, where we sometimes go for supplies, said that the father had died from a bite. Naturally while negotiating a sale our man didn't tell us that!"

Lottie's eyes were on the horizon following a trail of smoke lying out against the water like gauze blown by the wind.

for youths at the end of the war. He is 73 years old and was born in Germany. The Nazis, however, looked up his ancestry and discovered that his father was born of Jewish parents 120 years ago. The movement to oust Dr. Lewald then took definite form.

In this case the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, generally known as the organ of big business, voiced a protest, in spite of the government domination of the press. It reminds the Hitler government that it should learn to discriminate between recent Jewish immigrants from Russia and Poland and Jews whose families have been rooted in Germany for centuries and who did their full duty as citizens both in peace and war. The paper reminded the government that on his seventieth birthday Dr. Lewald received from President Hindenburg the highest medal the German Republic bestowed in recognition of work in promoting athletics among German youths.

The establishment of limitations on the number of Jewish lawyers who will be permitted to appear before the courts (in Berlin only 35 out of 2,000) is to be followed by limiting the number of Jewish doctors, surgeons and dentists. Opera houses, theatres and concert halls have been forced to discharge Jewish directors, actors, singers and musicians. The Berliner Tageblatt was compelled to dismiss 117 Jewish employees, whereupon Hitler's own paper commented that "wonders would never cease; even the Tageblatt is becoming anti-semitic."

Famous book publishing firms dare not accept books by authors who are on the Nazi blacklist. Because from America Toscanini, Damrosch, Bodansky, Bauer and Gubrilowitsch protested against the treatment of Jewish musicians in Germany, the government issued an order prohibiting the playing of any of their compositions or their gramophone records on radio stations.

Steps are being taken to eliminate Jews as directors in banks, manufacturing plants and other industries. One prominent American in Germany expressed the opinion that if the Nazis actually carry out the contemplated programme it would complete the paralysis of the country.

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR HONGKONG.

SCHEME TO ESTABLISH SOYA FACTORY

A large and up-to-date plant for the concentration of the soya bean industry of the Colony and for the production of its oil and other by-products, is shortly to be established by a group of Chinese businessmen.

The group of businessmen who are about to incorporate themselves into the China Soya Company, is headed by Mr. Tseng Tip, of No. 18, Kennedy Road. They have just acquired a large site 30,000 square feet in area, at Lai-chikok, on which the new factory, will be erected. The total cost is estimated to exceed $100,000.

Mr. Tseng Tip, when interviewed said that although the secret of the soya bean was discovered by China many thousands of years ago, and the Chinese were the greatest consumers, methods for the exploitation of the product by the Chinese themselves were on the most primitive lines, and it was left to a foreign country to carry on where they had left off.

Much of the famous soya bean sauce formerly consumed has been produced by a large number of small concerns whose method of extraction by the old process was far from being perfect. Local manufacturers said Mr. Tseng Tip, could, with advantage to themselves, have copied much of the Japanese method of production.

The Japanese, he said had been quick to realise the many properties of the bean in addition to its nutritive value. A large and increasing export of soya sauce was being carried on with European countries, where its value as a lubricant had been discovered.

Mr. Tseng claimed that the soya bean was gaining new favour in the eyes of European industrialists, who had found it a valuable ally in the preservation of canned foods as well as a new and tasty element in the making of table sauce.

With the establishment of this new industry Mr. Tseng Tip and his business colleagues, envisage the time when the company will have supplied not only all requirements of the Colony and near centres like Canton and Macao, but will have large surplus for export trade with Singapore, the Philippines, Australia, and California where large colonies of Chinese are settled.

The initial output will be limited to two million cwt. of the sauce every year. For this large production, scientific process equipment and machinery will be required. A feature of the new scientific process is that in place of the old method of allowing the beans to dry in the sun before extraction, the beans will be fermented in large covered tanks or vats, and then led through a number of other processes until finally emerging as the refined product.

Excluding Manchuria, vast areas in North China are planted with soya bean, and it is from these fields that the new Company intends to secure its raw material.

Experts who have made a special study of the latest process of manufacture will be employed. Other products to be included in the activities of the new plant will be preserved ginger fruits, and vegetables, as well as that uniquely Chinese preparation, bean curd.

EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET
STRONG

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was strong yesterday. Business done: 6,950,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: The momentum of Friday's and Saturday's market continued in full swing during one of the most active sessions since 1929. The market leaders were forced to absorb considerable profit-taking, but such temporary setbacks were more than nullified by new buying. Many stocks registered new heights for the year with industrial and railroad averages the highest since 1931. Tickers were swamped and quotations badly delayed. Continued favourable business news, especially steel, automobiles and favourable carloadings gave further impetus to the market.

The markets in the United States will be closed to-day, being the Memorial Day holiday.

THOSE WAR DEBTS

Only those in the closest touch with President Roosevelt are able to predict the nature of the Message he proposes shortly to send to Congress regarding war debts. It is generally assumed that he will seek authority for a moratorium. It is believed also that he will ask for a free hand, more or less, in the settlement of inter-governmental debts. It is a problem calling for speedy action. And the settlements reached must be definitive. The statesmen of all nations realise that unless the debts question is disposed of, there is little chance of a successful economic conference. It may, therefore, be taken for granted that President Roosevelt will seek authority to negotiate the best settlement possible. The problem has changed its complexion in the last twelve months. A year ago the revision or otherwise of war debts rested on the justice or injustice of the settlements in the light both of the original transactions and of the increased burdens involved in paying for them. The starting point to-day is decidedly different. Political factors have shifted. And by America's abandonment of gold even the burden of payments is altered. The question is succinctly stated by Mr. Dorsey Richardson in his book, "Will They Pay?" in these terms: "Shall we remain adamant and force default by Great Britain and further default by France, or revise the agreements downward before June 15, or before June 15 begin negotiations for revision, agreeing meanwhile to postponement of the June payments?" Arguments on any other basis miss out the history of the last six months. It is simply not conceivable that the statesmen at Washington will allow war debts to lapse by default. Nor can the cause of amity suffer any more postponement. The world is adrift on a sea of troubles. It is at such times that the highest kind of statesmanship, to use the word from which statesmanship is derived, is called forth—the came almost as a shock. A statesmanship that sees beyond the clamours of home politics. This was the case at Lausanne. Accustomed as was the world to conference failures, the success of the reparations conference similar opportunity is presented at the forthcoming parity. It may be expected to conclude with the same kind of success. Mr. Roosevelt has an advantage over his predecessor in coming to grips with the problem in its new frame of reference. The average American can now afford to meet the debtors with sympathy. Hitherto he has been troubled by uncomposed debts of his own. He has seen his so-called fixed charges creeping higher and higher when contrasted with his income. And, where he has not balked at paying old contracts, he has successfully invoked the intervention of his Government in substituting new contracts. So long as nothing was done about the American debt problem, nothing could be done about the war debts. But, with debts being scaled down all along the line, the attitude of the American debtor must, in all consistency, be more tolerant. This is not to say that the President's task is easy. His is, indeed, one of the thorniest of tasks facing any statesman in modern history.

London en Fete

The Enjoyment Week with which London proposes to celebrate the anniversary of the King's Birthday on June 3 is quite out of the ordinary run of things in Britain. For Britain is not given to setting aside particular days or weeks for special purposes. Despite England's lack of experience, however, in organising these enterprises, Enjoyment Week appears to have excellent prospects. Elaborate plans are foreshadowed: shops, streets and terminal stations will probably be illuminated and decorated, while a procession of gaily festooned cars is also contemplated. The theatres and cinemas are to offer gala attractions, and the Serpentine in Hyde Park will be the scene of boating and swimming competitions. The coming carnival week is not, of course, intended merely for pleasure. It has its serious, economic side, for it will doubtless draw the world's attention to London, not as a business centre or the capital of the British Empire, but as a tourist resort, a place where travellers from other lands may reasonably spend their holidays. If the event attracts tourist traffic to London on a bigger scale than ever before, London will not fail to live up to its advertisement, for with its historic buildings, its memories of Dickens, Thackeray, Lamb, Johnson and many hundreds more, and its multitudinous amusements, London is probably, to the traveller, the most fascinating town in Great Britain. Only in one respect does it fail to make the most of its assets. It has a river which, as Mr. A. P. Herbert constantly reminds the public, it appears to do its best to forget. It is, therefore, interesting to note that in the coming Enjoyment Week the Thames is to play a prominent part, for the river fire brigade is expected to arrange a display with coloured searchlights, and permission of the Admiralty is being sought for a warship to sail up into the heart of the city. This may attract attention to Mr. Herbert's frequent appeals to the London authorities to make the most of their river, and at the same time help to solve the traffic problem by establishing a fleet of river buses. Conditions have greatly altered since such a project met with ill success in 1908, and it is estimated that if 4,000,000 only of the 8,000,000 passengers who use the trams and buses of London every year were to employ the river buses the scheme would be financially profitable. In any case, a fleet of river buses would be a great attraction to tourists, for the Thames flows past such centres of historic and artistic interest as St. Paul's, Somerset House, the Customs House, the Temple, the Tate Gallery, the Tower of London, Westminster, and Lambeth Palace. Perhaps no other river in the world can show such a concentration of interest in so small a space.

TEN DAYS IN GERMANY.

HITLER AND HIS DICTATORSHIP

By MILTON BRONNER

Analyzing conditions within Germany after six weeks of Hitler dictatorship there are three inescapable conclusions to be drawn, after a ten-day trip through the country and conversations with responsible sources. The first is that Hitler will doubtless continue to rule for the four-year period of the prescribed dictatorship. The second is that there is little likelihood of the Nazis being disturbed by civil war for the simple reason that all opposition forces have been completely shattered. The third is that Hitler may have come into power much sooner than he actually expected, and was caught unprepared for any thing except the destruction of his enemies. Lacking a programme, after lavish promises, he gave his followers an immediate scapegoat—the Jews—upon whom they could vent their hatred. Every major action taken by Hitler to date has been directed toward consolidating the Nazi power over every branch of German life. The various decrees, taking jobs away from Jews, Socialists and Liberals, mean that these jobs are now held by Hitler followers. From government departments on down to municipalities, universities, schools, and even private business enterprises, this movement has swept. Meantime what has happened to the Nazi opposition is this: Communism has been driven completely to cover. The Social Democrats are smashed. Many of their leaders have fled to Switzerland, Vienna or Prague, leaving the rank and file entirely dismayed and disgusted. The centre Party (Catholic) accepted the olive branch extended by Hitler in his Reichstag speech. The Catholic Bishops have raised the ban on members of the Church who are

Nazis. The trip of Vice Chancellor Von Papen and Minister Goering to Rome means the settlement of all disputes, with the probability that they will arrange with the Vatican for a new concordat, embracing all Germany, and nullifying previous concordats with states such as Bavaria. This would mean that Bavaria will no longer have a minister at the Vatican, but a German legate will represent the entire country.

Vice Chancellor Von Papen, Minister of Economy Alfred Hugenberg and Minister of Finance Franz Seldte are being kept in the government purely to emphasize the "national character" of the cabinet. Should Hitler choose to dispense with them, there is no organization on the outside to protest. If President Hindenburg should die or should resign, it is thought likely in Berlin that Hitler would become President and Minister-Without-Portfolio Goering would be named Chancellor. Goering is the most powerful man in the government. His stormy speeches and radical acts are popular with the younger Nazis. By comparison with Goering, Hitler seems calm and moderate.

The anti-Jew campaign is being pursued diligently. The family trees of office holders are being examined for traces of Jewish ancestry, if there is any doubt of their removal. An example of this is to be found in the ultimate removal of Dr. Theodor Lewald as chairman of the German Sports Federation. Dr. Lewald is also Chairman of the Olympic Committee for the games to be held in Berlin in 1936. His resignation from this post may be expected. Dr. Lewald was the chief organizer of the German sports movement (Continued on Page 4.)

The Very Idea!

WE HAVE A SECRET
By Eddie Kelly, Dumb.

THERE'S so much secrecy about what's going on up North, that we thought it would be a good idea if we could be a bit secret ourselves. In fact, we were going to be so secret that we were going to let you guess what should have been in this column to-day. But the Editor bucked.

There's no connexion between secrets and secretaries. Secrets are things women can't keep. Secretaries are things a lot of men can't afford to keep.

Anyway, what about introducing some more of this secrecy in Hongkong.

At present the only secrets we know are what the Hongkong government is going to do about the water shortage, what the girl friend said to us out on the Repulse Bay road last night, what's going to win the Derby to-morrow, and what we think of Editors who won't give us our own way.

For instance, take the Empire Fair. Now it's all over, the people are complaining about the large crowds that cluttered up the place. They know the remedy. Let them hold the next Empire Fair in camera.

Then, instead of pages and pages of blurb about someone's ointment, the newspapers could come out with blank sheets. Look at all the work it would save the reporters.

Next thing would be to get rid of the spectators. A simple way of doing this would be to hold the Fair at the Peninsula, but advertise it at the Hongkong Hotel, with free drinks thrown in.

In case it leaked out that the Fair was at the Peninsula, it would be a good idea to mount the whole hotel on rollers so that it could be run around the corner if any unauthorised person was caught looking at it.

Then, just in case someone did get in, it would be necessary to put screens around all the exhibits. In the wines and spirits section Eddie Kelly and a few of his pals would make effective screens.

It would be a bit awkward keeping the Telephone Company's exhibit a secret. But perhaps they could arrange to give subscribers the wrong number, and the Telephone could be worked on the Braille principle.

As no-one ever listened to the Empire Fair blab broadcasts from ZBV this year, it would be quite safe to allow them next year. The rest of this article will be written in camera.

HITHERTO UNPUBLISHED CORRESPONDENCE.

Ma Chere Cesarine,
I thank you so much for the so lovely time you have given me during my sojourn in Hongkong. It is the very best of times. You have the so lovely sights, and such funny men. You remember that one outside, what you call it, the Peninsula Hotel. It was so screaming to see him trying to get along, what you say, at a sort of a rolling standstill, 'est ce pas? What I like so much more than any other was our visit to your beautiful council chamber, the men round the little table were all so solemn and serious. They think so hard they have no time to speak. I do not understand him all the time. Your city must be the great city. All your councillors can read and write, and all of them were sober. I was so surprised. When you come here I will show you our Hotel-de-Ville. It will be a big shock for you. But I think I like him better when you have to stay with him for a long time. Recommend me to your dear Maman, ma chere Cesarine, I am,
Your affectionate,
SUSANNE.

SUPER-SALESMANSHIP.

A few days ago speaking about salesmanship, Sir William Crawford told his hearers always to take the customer's point of view and talk about him. There seems a snag about this somewhere. Imagine the Potential Customer approaching the Bright Young Salesman, with this result:
P.C.—I want a new hat.
B.Y.S.—Yes it is about time you throw that away.
P.C.—I also want some snappy ties.
B.Y.S.—You look as if you went to a rope shop for your last lot. And if you ask me you want a new suit. That one fits where it touches and even if you haven't got decent shoes you might keep them clean. No don't thank me. Thank Sir William Crawford.

Thank heaven, there are only 189 more shopping days to Christmas.

SON'S ALLEGED FORGERY

PLAINTIFF'S SHARP OUTBURST

"I WILL SLAUGHTER HIM"

"If I ever see my son again I will slaughter him" exclaimed Li Tse-shi, plaintiff in the Bonham Strand West property litigation which was resumed at the Supreme Court this morning before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Wood.

The case is one in which Li Tse-shi, administratrix with the will annexed to the estate of her late husband, Li Yoon-nam, of Toi Shan, seeks to recover 73 Bonham Strand, from Ng Tsoi-ching, of Shatin, it being alleged that the property assignment was a forgery perpetrated by plaintiff's adopted son, Li Kai-loy.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon and Mr. Leo D'Almeida e Castro, Jrs., (instructed by Messrs. Lo and Lo) are appearing for plaintiff, and Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., and Mr. F. C. Jenhin, K.C., instructed by Messrs. Hastings and Co., for defendant.

Plaintiff, recalled to-day stated that the deeds of the property were kept in the tray-compartment of an American trunk and between the date of the death of her husband and when she found the deeds were missing in July, 1931, she had not looked inside the tray.

Mr. Jenkin, in cross-examination: I put it to you that the deeds were in Hongkong for well over a year after your husband's death.—Witness: If they were kept in Hongkong at all it must have been after the deeds were stolen.

I put it to you that the deeds were entrusted to Wong Wah-kong by you and taken to Hongkong for the purpose of having the property put in the name of your son, Li Kai-loy.—No. That is not so.

Did you know that at the public auction of the property some one tried to prevent the sale of the property going through?—I was told that Ng Yu-hon had said at the sale that the property belonged to Li Tse-shi about August 5, after I had returned from Canton.

NOT SEEN HIM SINCE

Have you ever seen your son since you beat him at Toi Shan?—No. If I ever see him again I will slaughter him.

Witness denied that her son was at Ng Yu-hon's shop when she went there after being taken to the Police Station.

Li Choy-loy, nephew of plaintiff, was next called and deposed to having received a letter from Ng Yu-hon informing him that the property had been sold. He wrote to his aunt who was then in Canton and later met her in Hongkong.

The case is proceeding.

COUNTERFEIT COINS CHINESE ARRESTED WITH BIG HAUL

An unemployed Chinese arrested in possession of 394 counterfeit ten cent pieces and 247 counterfeit five cent pieces, on arrival of the s.s. Tin Yat last night at the Ping On Wharf, told the Police that he picked the coins up on the new Pearl River Bridge.

Appearing before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, denied knowing they were counterfeit.

Detective Sergeant Allen said that 358 of the ten cents and five cent pieces were found in purse. In defendant's pockets were found 36 counterfeit ten cents, while two five cent pieces and 14 copper cents, all good, were also discovered.

Revenue Officer Tam Wai stated he saw the defendant leaving the ship in a manner arousing suspicion. Defendant asked to be given a chance and suggested throwing the coins into the harbour.

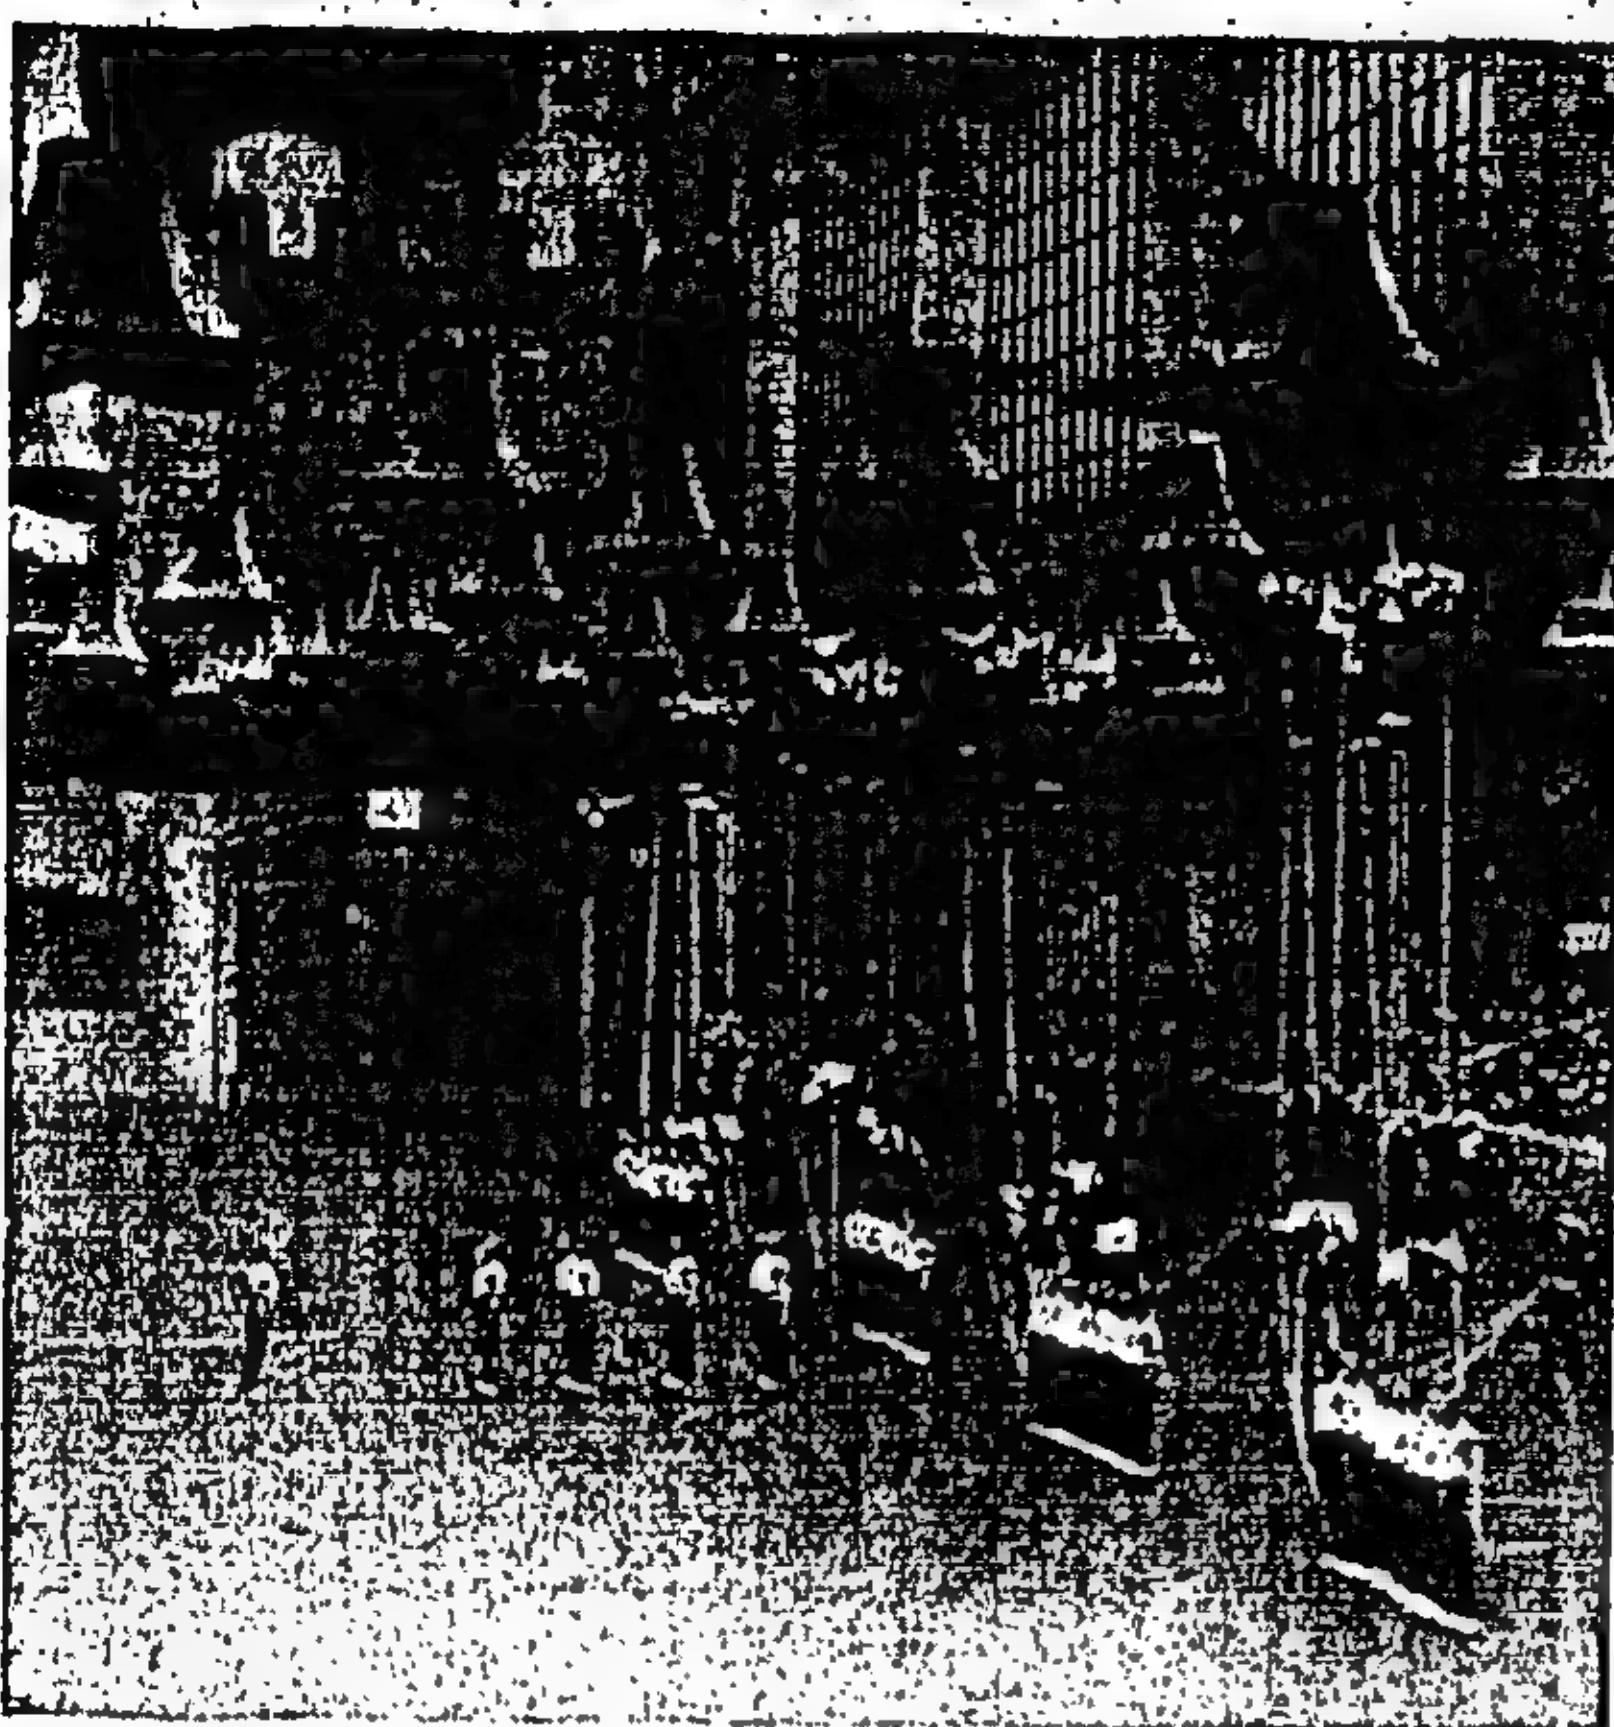

Chinese money changer stated the coins were light in weight, and brittle.

Sub-Inspector Smith pointed out that the number of the offences was getting serious, and sentence of six months was passed.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE SOVIET DELEGATES APPOINTED

Moscow, May 22. The delegation of the U.S.S.R. to the World Economic Conference scheduled to open in London on June 12 has been appointed by the Council of Peoples Commissaries.

M. Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, has been named chairman of the delegation, with M. Mezhlauk, assistant chairman of the State Planning Commission, as vice-chairman. The other members of the Soviet delegation are M. Malenkov, Soviet Ambassador to London, and M. Ozarsky, vice-commissar of foreign trade.—Tass.

FENG TO FIGHT ORGANISING AN ARMY OF 150,000 MEN

Peking, May 30.

Renewal of hostilities on a bigger scale is now being discussed freely as more than a possibility. Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang is against peace and claims a following of 150,000 troops consisting of the Kuominchun and non-Kuominchun forces who have seen fighting in Jehol during the last few months.

Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang announces from Kalgan the appointment of Generals Sun Tien-ying and Feng Tsim-hai as commanders of his First Route Command, General Feng Chen-wu of the Second Route Command.

Strong military support is expected from Charhar and Shansi.—Special.

ALLEGED ASSAULT ON WAITRESS UNSAVOURY STORY TOLD IN COURT

Wong Kam-choi was charged before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having assaulted Cheung Shu-chuen, a tea shop waitress on May 27, with the larceny of a leather suitcase containing clothes and jewellery to the value of $79 and with having further assaulted the complainant on May 28.

The defendant admitted the first assault, but denied the other charges.

Detective Sergeant Fitches said that complainant met the defendant about three years ago, and lived with him. The defendant was then employed as a coolie in a house at the Peak, earning $16 a month, while the complainant earned $1 a day. After some time, defendant gave up his job, and commenced living on the wages of complainant. She practically gave all her earnings to defendant.

After the evidence of the complainant had been taken, Mr. Schofield remanded the case until Thursday afternoon.

Complainant went to work at 6 a.m. the following morning, and when she returned in the afternoon, found her leather suitcase missing. Defendant admitted having taken it away. He then abused her and followed her into the street, but she blew a whistle, and the man was arrested. Defendant said at the police station that he had pawned the suitcase, but later took the police to a private house, where it was recovered.

"BIG BEN"

SURROUNDED BY STEEL TUBES

AFTER 30 YEARS

London.

Scaffolding composed of steel tubes will soon shroud the famous Clock Tower of the Houses of Parliament, in which Big Ben is housed. It is at least 30 years since the tower was completely surrounded by scaffolding in this way.

An immense amount of the steel scaffolding will be needed, for the Clock Tower is 329 feet in height, and the total cost of the repairs now to be carried out is estimated at £76,000. It is expected that a beginning will be made during the summer recess of Parliament.

It was in 1926 that Lord Peel, at that time First Commissioner of Works, issued a memorandum on "The defective condition of the stonework of the House of Parliament," and the cost of the scheme of restoration was then estimated at £1,000,000.

Since then, however, it has been found possible to reduce this estimate somewhat, and in May of this year Mr. Ormsby-Gore, the present First Commissioner of Works, announced in the House of Commons that the cost was then estimated at £750,000.

Already at least a hundred men have been working on the House of Parliament for four years, and it will probably be about ten years more before the task is completed.—Reuter.

REORGANISATION OF COALFIELDS

Latest Movement By Soviets

Moscow, May 22.

Over the signatures of M. Molotov and M. Stalin, a decision of the Council of People Commissaries and the Central Committee of the Communist Party is published to-day providing for reorganization of the management of mines and trusts in the Don Basin and alterations in the wages of the workers and engineering and technical staffs there.

The decision calls for a simplification of the system of management, furnishes an exact definition of the duties of departmental heads, simplifies the present procedure of fixing production scales, defines exactly progressive and premium payments for labour, and increases wages in a number of categories, including the engineering technical staffs.—Tass.

In reply to a Parliamentary question, whether all the necessary arrangements with regard to landing grounds and meteorological services have been made by the Government of India to enable the air route from London to Singapore, and ultimately to Australia, to be initiated in accordance with the scheduled dates, it was stated by the Secretary for India that there is no reason to anticipate any delay.

Arrangements are already complete in respect of the extension from Karachi to Calcutta.—British Wireless.

MINING NOW BEING CARRIED OUT

Moscow.

The presence of manganese deposits in Siberia was known as far back as the year 1900, but they were not developed because of the great distance from the then-existing metallurgical centres.

The development of the iron and steel industry in the Stalinsk (former Kuznetsk) Basin has entirely changed the situation, and the mining of manganese is now being carried out at the Mazul village.

Construction of the Mazul manganese mines was started last year. The beds are horizontal and can be mined from the surface.

Without particularly great mechanization. It is estimated that with the employment of some 600 miners it will be possible to produce there 120,000 tons of manganese a year, thus supplying fully the needs of the open-hearth furnaces at the Stalinsk works. A branch railway is being constructed, and production is now being conducted on a commercial scale.

The total reserves of Mazul manganese ore are estimated at 1,200,000 tons. Development of this mine will obviate the necessity of importing manganese from the Chiatursi deposits in Transcaucasia.—Tass.

Girl Singer Faints Before the King and Queen

While singing before the King and Queen, Miss Elizabeth Aveling, the senior pupil at the Royal College of Music, fainted and fell at the conductor's feet.

The concert, which took place at the Royal College of Music, was in celebration of the jubilee of the College. The opening item was an Ode by Swinburne, which was set to music by Dr. Charles Wood.

During the singing of the opening verse by the choir, Miss Aveling, who was dressed entirely in white, looked very pale. She sang the second verse alone and suddenly fell forward in the middle of the last line.

—THEN CARRIED ON.

Two violinists hurried from the orchestra and raised her up, and she actually managed to complete the line. She was then helped from the platform, and the director of the College, Sir Hugh Allen, hurried to her.

In a very few moments Miss Aveling recovered, returned to the platform, and sang the third verse of the Ode. Her courage was rewarded by loud applause.

Miss Aveling is the daughter of the Registrar of the College, Mr. Claude Aveling, and although still a scholar, has made several public appearances as a professional singer.

The whole of this jubilee celebration programme was of music written and performed by students and ex-students of the college.

Sir Landon Ronald, who was a student and member of the Orchestra from 1887 to 1891, was given a wonderful reception when he appeared to conduct the exhilarating "Jupiter" movement from "The Planets," by Gustav Holst.

The other ex-student conductors who, in addition to the director, Sir Hugh Allen, took part in the concert were Sir Dan Godfrey, Dr. John Ireland, Major Geoffrey Toye and Mr. Arthur Bliss.

LLOYD GEORGE AND LEADERSHIP

"HAD JOLLY WELL ENOUGH OF IT"

Strong appeals to Mr. Lloyd George to "lead the Liberal Party back to the right course" was made at the Welsh Liberal Convention at Llandrindog Wells.

In his reply Mr. Lloyd George said he spoke as "one who has had jolly well enough of leadership."

Referring to flattering remarks by a previous speaker, Mr. Lloyd George said: "When he has had as much flattery and condemnation as I have had for the last 50 years, he will be perfectly indifferent to both. I cannot recall five minutes sleep I have lost through either."

He described the resolutions for this month's Liberal conference at Scarborough as "tepid, turgid and arid."

"There is no recovery there," he added, "you cannot revive a drooping party with a mass of husks boiled in lukewarm water perfunctorily stirred. It makes bad porridge and is not much use as a poultice. You must have something with real life and real purpose in it."

What was the good of talking of national development, re-housing or afforestation and then saying you must not spend money?

They must be prepared to invest the national resources which were lying idle. The country would respond to a bold appeal.

Professor Levi, of Aberystwyth, said: "We ask Mr. Lloyd George, as the only stalwart Liberal left in Wales—we demand of him—to lead us back to the right course and as he has saved the country from the enemy abroad to save it now from the enemy at home."

"Are we going to fight the next General Election," asked Professor Levi, "with nothing before us but the miserable policy of Simonism and Samuelism?"

A resolution moved by Councillor J. Morris Jones of Denbigh, calling on the Liberal Party to range itself in opposition to the Government both in and out of Parliament and to adopt a more Radical policy, was carried unanimously.

Another resolution urged Liberals to work for the repeal of tariffs.

Admitting he severed the electric fittings from a flat in Des Voeux Road, which had been wired, a Chinese, charged with theft was sent to prison for six weeks by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning. Sub-Inspector Smith stated the house had been let and was ready for the occupants. Defendant was an unemployed electrician.

FEWER MEN & WOMEN IN PRISON

NATION GROWS MORE SOBER

The prison population of to-day is superior in education to the prison population at the beginning of the century, says the annual report on the prisoners of England and Wales.

On this subject Dr. Norwood East, the Medical Commissioner, says:

"Many prisoners to-day are above the average in intelligence, and many others of average intelligence are capable and alert, resourceful and aggressive men of determined character."

MORE LAW-ABIDING NATION.

Men received in prison on conviction in 1931 numbered 32,471, and women 4,964—1,061 fewer men and 512 women than in 1930.

The total for men was, with the exception of 1929, the lowest since 1924, and for women substantially the lowest since 1924.

Sentences for indictable offences (that is, serious offences) accounted for only 26 out of every 100 men received into prison.

Before the war the annual convictions of women for drunkenness numbered over 35,000, and there were about 15,000 imprisonments of women for drunkenness each year.

In 1931 the convictions had decreased to 7,131 and the imprisonments to 2,366.

Dr. Norwood East, discussing the suggestion that psychotherapy might cure many offenders, says:

"It is a travesty to suggest that crime is a disease. But it is clearly the result sometimes of a neurotic disorder."

HIKE ON BIKES

7,000 AUSTRALIANS TAKE PART

Sydney, N.S.W.

Stretched over a distance of two to three miles, the 7,000 cyclists who participate in a "mystery hike on bikes," took half an hour to pass a given spot.

The hike was conducted by the South Australian Cycle Retailers' Association. Led by a silver band on a motor truck, the "hikers" paddled their way to Hazelwood Park, Burnside.

So large was the procession of cyclists that all other traffic was held up.

Among the wide assortment of bicycles were the tandem and the "penny farthing."

A little boy four years of age, covered the whole of the journey, which was about fifteen miles, on his diminutive bicycle, and the oldest cyclist was aged 80.—Reuter.

WOMEN PREACHERS

MUST BE OVER AGE OF 25

The Archbishop of Canterbury has brought his own diocese into line with others by approving regulations for the special recognition of women's work. These new conditions will permit women, not under the age of 25 and possessing special qualifications, to receive the Archbishop's licence to speak in churches at other times than the regular services.

Dr. Lang explains in his "Diocesan Gazette" that the object of the regulations "is to regularise the work, to give authority and recognition to those engaged in it, and to bring its methods into line with other dioceses which have been foremost in giving it a rightful place in church order."

Where a woman attains the standard for the Archbishop's licence a guarantee will be offered for an adequate stipend for her services.

A woman worker, with the Archbishop's licence to preach, will not be permitted to administer Holy Communion nor conduct any of those services belonging particularly to the clergy.

There are now 248 deaconesses in the Church of England.

FAIR TO SHOWERY

The Royal Observatory reports that pressure remains highest to the north-east of Hokkaido and is relatively low in a trough extending from the Annam coast across S. Formosa and N. Luzon to the Pacific.

Local forecast.—East or variable winds, moderate; fair to showery.

MORPHIA DISCLOSURE BY DOCTOR'S WIDOW

Inquest Story of Drug-Taking

A wife's disclosure that she used to take morphia was made at the Westminster inquest on Dr. John Theobald Hill, 55, formerly of Limerick, who was found poisoned at Charing Cross Hotel.

A verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was recorded by the Coroner, Mr. Ingleby Oddie.

The doctor's widow, Violet Gladys Hill, a young woman who gave as her address an hotel in Fenchurch-square, W., said she had lived apart from her husband for about a year.

The Coroner: Why did you separate?—It was because I used to take morphia.

Have you been cured?—Yes.

Did you get the morphia from his surgery?—Yes.

Where was he practising?—At Tunbridge Wells.

Why did you take morphia?—I had neuritis in the arms. He used to give it to me hypodermically.

Then you got it from his surgery?—Yes.

Her husband had been contributing to her support, she said. He sent a cheque every week.

How long had he been assistant at Beckton-road, Canning Town?—About 12 months.

LAST MEETING.

After the separation, she added, she went into a nursing home. Her husband sold his practice and went to London. She last saw him on the day of his death. He forbade her to see him, but she felt she wanted to.

Mrs. Hill gave her evidence under stress of great emotion, and her voice was almost inaudible.

She said her husband was annoyed at her coming, but there was no quarrel. They parted on the Underground about 5 or 6 p.m. on Saturday.

It was stated that Dr. Hill went to the Charing Cross Hotel on Saturday evening and was found dead in his room on Sunday evening.

Sir Bernard Spilsbury, who made a postmortem, said he found 40 punctured wounds made by a hypodermic needle across the abdomen, and 30 on the left thigh.

Death was due to carbolic acid poisoning. Most of the punctures were very recent, and were consistent with having been made just before death.

The coroner showed Sir Bernard a bottle containing a colourless fluid and said: "This must be morphia."

The Coroner: He may have brought it to make up a solution.

Mr. David Morris, a solicitor, said he was Dr. Hill's executor. It was obvious that the doctor was in very poor health and was worried about it. He got the impression that Dr. Hill was very deeply attached to his wife.

INCOME-TAX DEMAND.

"On going through his papers," said Mr. Morris, "I found an income-tax demand dated Jan. 6 for £140."

"In the short time he was at Tunbridge Wells I think he was carrying on his practice at a loss. I do not think he even made £140 net profit. If we had known about this we should have got this assessment discharged altogether."

"He had mentioned the possibility of having to go to prison over it. He was very worried about it, but it was absurd because he did not owe a penny of it."

"I do not think he drank to excess, but he certainly had a glass or two of beer in the evening."

Mr. Oddie said that an attack of influenza had undoubtedly left Dr. Hill very depressed.

Dr. Max Acland said he bought Dr. Hill's practice and later made him a partner. Dr. Hill owed the money for the partnership. He was hard-working and conscientious.

The coroner said Dr. Hill was much worried about his health and anxious about his financial position.

Recording his verdict, Mr. Oddie said: "I think he was worried to death."

PREACHERS' PAY

"SWEATING" CHARGE—AND A DENIAL.

A protest against preachers' salary cuts was made at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of England at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The Rev. Eric Philip, Manchester, objected to the scale recommended by the Home Church Committee, which would, he said, involve reductions in salaries of over £20, and in one case of not less than £75.

If other Churches, he continued, liked to sweat their labourers, he

STARTLING U.S. FIGURES

WORLD'S HIGHEST

New York.

With about 12,000 murders and homicides last year, the United States still leads the civilized nations of the world in the number of homicides, according to The Spectator, an insurance periodical.

Based on his conclusions on reports from 180 cities in the United States, the writer found that the rate was 10.8 per 100,000 of population and did not vary from that of 1931. While the returns for the year are not yet complete, actual figures for the five years beginning in 1927 and ending with 1931 show that 51,206 persons in the country met death by homicide.

"Murder more than ever is becoming an ingenious art, if not a trade, in this country," said the article.

The report concludes that American crime-detecting agencies are "inefficient, helpless or corrupt to a degree that should startle an apathetic public which has become habituated to look on even the most ghastly murder as a matter of course."

The City of Memphis continued to head the homicide list with a rate of 54.2 per 100,000 of population. Seven other Southern cities had rates exceeding 40 per 100,000 of population.

The rates for the five largest cities were Chicago, 12.8; Detroit, 9.6; Los Angeles, 8.4; New York, 8, and Philadelphia 7.8.—Reuter.

MALCOLM CAMPBELL'S NEW RIVAL

RICH YOUNG MOTORIST

Motor races have another idol, Whitney Straight, the 22-year-old rich Cambridge undergraduate.

In the Junior Car Club's new handicap race at Brooklands driving his 2,614 c.c. Maserati, Straight played a terrific game of hare and hounds with Sir Malcolm Campbell on the famous 4,000 c.c. Sunbeam Tiger.

The race was of 250 miles, and there were 29 competitors. The handicap was novel: the biggest cars had to drive through a series of exceedingly difficult bends, the medium cars had an easier set of bends, and the smallest cars had a circuit with no bends.

Campbell was well on the banking before Straight got going. Then he began his thrill stuff. The first bends, which Campbell was taking at 50 m.p.h., Straight treated with contempt at 70 m.p.h.

The second bends Straight took 15 m.p.h. faster than Campbell, the crowd roaring its joy as its new idol each lap accelerated to 80 or 90 m.p.h.

HALF-HOUR THRILL.

On the third lap he had almost caught Campbell, when, swooping down from the banking into the straight at over 130 m.p.h. the rear of his car snapped badly. The car looked certain to overturn, but it righted itself and Straight flashed past Campbell, got into the first bend before him, and was almost through the second bend before Campbell had rounded the first curve. And Campbell was averaging nearly 90 m.p.h. for each lap.

For half an hour longer Straight continued the thrill and then had to retire with back axle trouble, leaving Campbell to head the field.

Brian Lewis took on the job of "hound," and for an hour there was not ten yards between them. After two hours' running Campbell came into the pits, and Lewis won.

Mrs. Wisdom, the only woman driver, was splendidly consistent, lapping at between 80 and 88 m.p.h. for the 250 miles.

The result was:

1.—Brian Lewis (Alfa Romeo), 2h. 58min. 12sec.; speed, 88.07.

2.—E. R. Hall (M.G. Magnette 1080c.c.), 3h. 9min. 37 2-5sec.; speed, 82.77.

3.—Mrs. E. M. Wisdom (MG Magnette), 3h. 12min. 14sec.; speed, 81.24.

Early in the race Mr. J. C. Elwes's M.G. skidded and overturned. Elwes crawled out with no bones broken.

did not see why the Presbyterian Church should do so, and if economy was necessary it ought not to be at the expense of the worst paid people in their churches.

Dr. Gillies, of Bath, maintained that it was not right to say that they were not paying a living wage. The new scales were agreed to.

FOR PARTNERSHIPS.
1.—Upon the death of one partner it is legally required that the partnership be dissolved immediately to settle the estate. Business Insurance provides the immediate cash to enable the surviving partner to purchase the deceased partner's interest without drawing upon invested capital, and without being forced to liquidate assets at what might well be an unfavorable moment.
2.—It provides the cash to guarantee that the deceased partner's heirs will receive full value of his interest in the partnership.
3.—The annual deposits serve to create a sinking fund, which can be used to retire a partner, or is available at any time as a hidden cash reserve to meet any emergency.

FOR COMPANIES.
1.—Business Insurance provides the immediate cash to indemnify a concern for the loss of an employee or skilled advisor whose ability is of great importance to the success of the firm.
2.—It provides a cash fund for retirement.
3.—It enhances credit, and is often used as collateral security.
4.—It provides a means of retiring indebtedness through a sinking fund process. Its full face value is payable immediately in cash in the event of the non-survival of the insured, and can be arranged to mature at its full value after a period of years of accumulation.
5.—The cash value of the policy constitutes a hidden reserve, which is available in times of financial emergency.

LOVE OR MONEY?

yet," she said casually. "And you live here!"

"I've lived in Florida," Barry answered, "yet there are snakes there."

"Maybe that's different!"

"Lottie!" Steve turned to her amusedly. "If I asked you very politely to come with me to the high bush now would you go?"

"But would you ask me?" Lottie retorted, cocking her head. "I'm a dangerous blonde. I might compromise you."

"Maybe I wouldn't mind."

Lottie's eyes roved to Barry. Apparently he had not heard this banter. It was the first personal thing to enter the conversation. Or perhaps Barry had heard! Now he rose, stretched a bit, and, taking leave of the others with a brief nod, sauntered toward the house.

Lottie and Steve, unheeding, were once more adrift in gay banter. Perhaps they would rather be alone but Mona couldn't leave them! It would seem too pointed, too much as though she were following Barry. She would be quiet but she would have to remain.

Remain—for what? And for how long? Barry and Steve would ultimately be leaving Holiday Island and setting out for the mine. Though they seemed in no hurry to leave, it occurred to Mona that they might be delaying their departure until she and Lottie had announced their plans.

Days slid by. More drowsy days filled with sunshine. They all went to Grenada one morning in the launch to bring back supplies. They had lunch on the crest of a hill, Mona and Lottie resting while Steve and Barry sought out carpenters who were to be engaged for work on the hangar.

On these little jaunts Mona was always proud of the boys. In their immaculate linen and pith helmets they looked like West Indian potentates, as indeed it is possible they were regarded.

There was a pause freighted with questions. "Has Steve said anything?" Mona asked presently. "Has he ever mentioned Barry and me? Or has he said, anything about me? Has he ever mentioned the rush he and Barry were in to leave Twilands a year ago or my marriage or the money I have now—or anything? Has he ever—"

"It's all so queer," Lottie inter-

Nanking, May 29.

Chinese press reports state that the Korean authorities intend to raise the import duties on Chinese fabrics of jute, hemp, flax, ramie and other textile fibres as high as thirty to forty per cent. The measure is believed to be a reprisal against the alteration of the Chinese tariff following the termination of the Sino-Japanese tariff agreement.

It is learned that the Chinese merchants are now taking appropriate measures to safeguard their trade in the Korean market.—Reuter.

rupted: "I have a sort of feeling that Steve and Barry are waiting for us, perhaps, to open the subject."

"Do you really think that?"

"Maybe," Lottie considered her well-shaped nails meditatively and relapsed into silence. She laid an affectionate, tender hand on Mona's arm.

"Darling," she went on presently, "why don't you speak to him? After all, you were the offender!"

"I'm the offender," repeated Mona slowly. "Oh, Lottie, it's all the biggest mess! Here we are, guests in their house, upsetting all their plans probably. Getting poor Miss Gracie over to chaperon—"

She likes it. She dotes on it! Lottie said soberly. "And that, Mona, is our biggest bet!"

"Miss Gracie?"

"Of course. Whose idea was it to bring her here to preserve appearances? Do you suppose appearances would matter or even enter anyone's head down here if you were just an ordinary person to Barry? That boy loves you, Mona! Her tone italicized the statement. "Why don't you give him a chance?"

"Do you think he needs one?" Lottie's glance was withering.

"Think he wants one?" Mona pursued.

Lottie nodded firmly. "I do. Let's not waste any more time. Let's help them out somehow. Heaven knows, it's been done before!"

"How can we help them?" The other girl considered. "To-night there's a moon. We'll dress in our prettiest for dinner." "But we always dress. It seems to be Barry's idea of roughing it at this place to dress as he would on Park Avenue." "Anyhow we'll dress—put on something especially becoming, smile our sweetest. There's going to be moonlight and a soft breeze. Yes, tonight we're going to make something happen!" (To be continued.)

LICENCE REFUSED

RESTAURANT TOO NEAR DANCING ACADEMY

The proximity of a dancing academy, to the Excelsior Restaurant was one of the objections raised by Mr. T. H. King, Deputy Inspector General of Police, to the granting of a restaurant keeper's adjacent licence to Mr. Puran Chand, proprietor of the Excelsior Restaurant, at the meeting of the Licensing Board yesterday.

After the Board had considered the application, the Chairman, (Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern) informed the applicant that there were already sufficient facilities for meals and with drinks in the vicinity of his restaurant. The Board therefore was not prepared to grant the licence.

Others present at the meeting were the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, (Attorney General), Mr. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, Mr. J. M. Wong, Mr. J. L. McPherson, Mr. T. H. King and Mr. H. Owen Davies, (secretary).

Mr. F. G. Nigel, appearing for Mr. Chand, said he understood that from $18,000 to $20,000 has been spent on the premises and nothing had been skimped to make the restaurant at fit and proper place for an eating house. Much money would be lost if the licence was not granted. Many people thought it was impossible to eat a meal with out drinking something at the same time. He himself had been to the place, and it was very well fitted up.

The Chairman.—The feeling of the Board previously was that there were plenty of places already licensed in that vicinity. What have you to put forward in favour of our issuing another licence.

Mr. Nigel.—I don't believe there are many licensees in that part of Des Voeux Road. There may be others on the Queen's Road side, but as far as I am aware, there are very few of them on the Des Voeux road side.

The Chairman.—Do you happen to know, Mr. King.

Mr. King.—There is the Gloucester Building, Hongkong Hotel, Queen's Cafeteria and another in Queen's Road, the King's Restaurant and Lane Crawford's.

Mr. Nigel.—These premises that Mr. King has mentioned seem to be rather out of the beaten track.

Mr. King.—I would like to put before the Board that there are a number of licensees in the immediate neighbourhood, and all within a stone's throw of these premises. The amount of money spent, I should think, has nothing to do with the granting or other wise of a liquor licence, and I think the real reason for this application is a desire to keep such a place next to a dancing academy. The dancing academy has been in existence for some time and I don't think the idea of a restaurant and of a liquor licence occurred at first, and I submit there is no need for this licence. I do not want a liquor licence next door or close to this dancing academy.

The Chairman (to Mr. Nigel).—Has your client had anything to do with the liquor licence business before?

Mr. Nigel.—He has been connected with the Peninsula Hotel.

The Chairman.—In what connection?

Mr. Nigel.—I believe it was not in connection with the liquor licence, but with the building department of the hotel. He also has a manager.

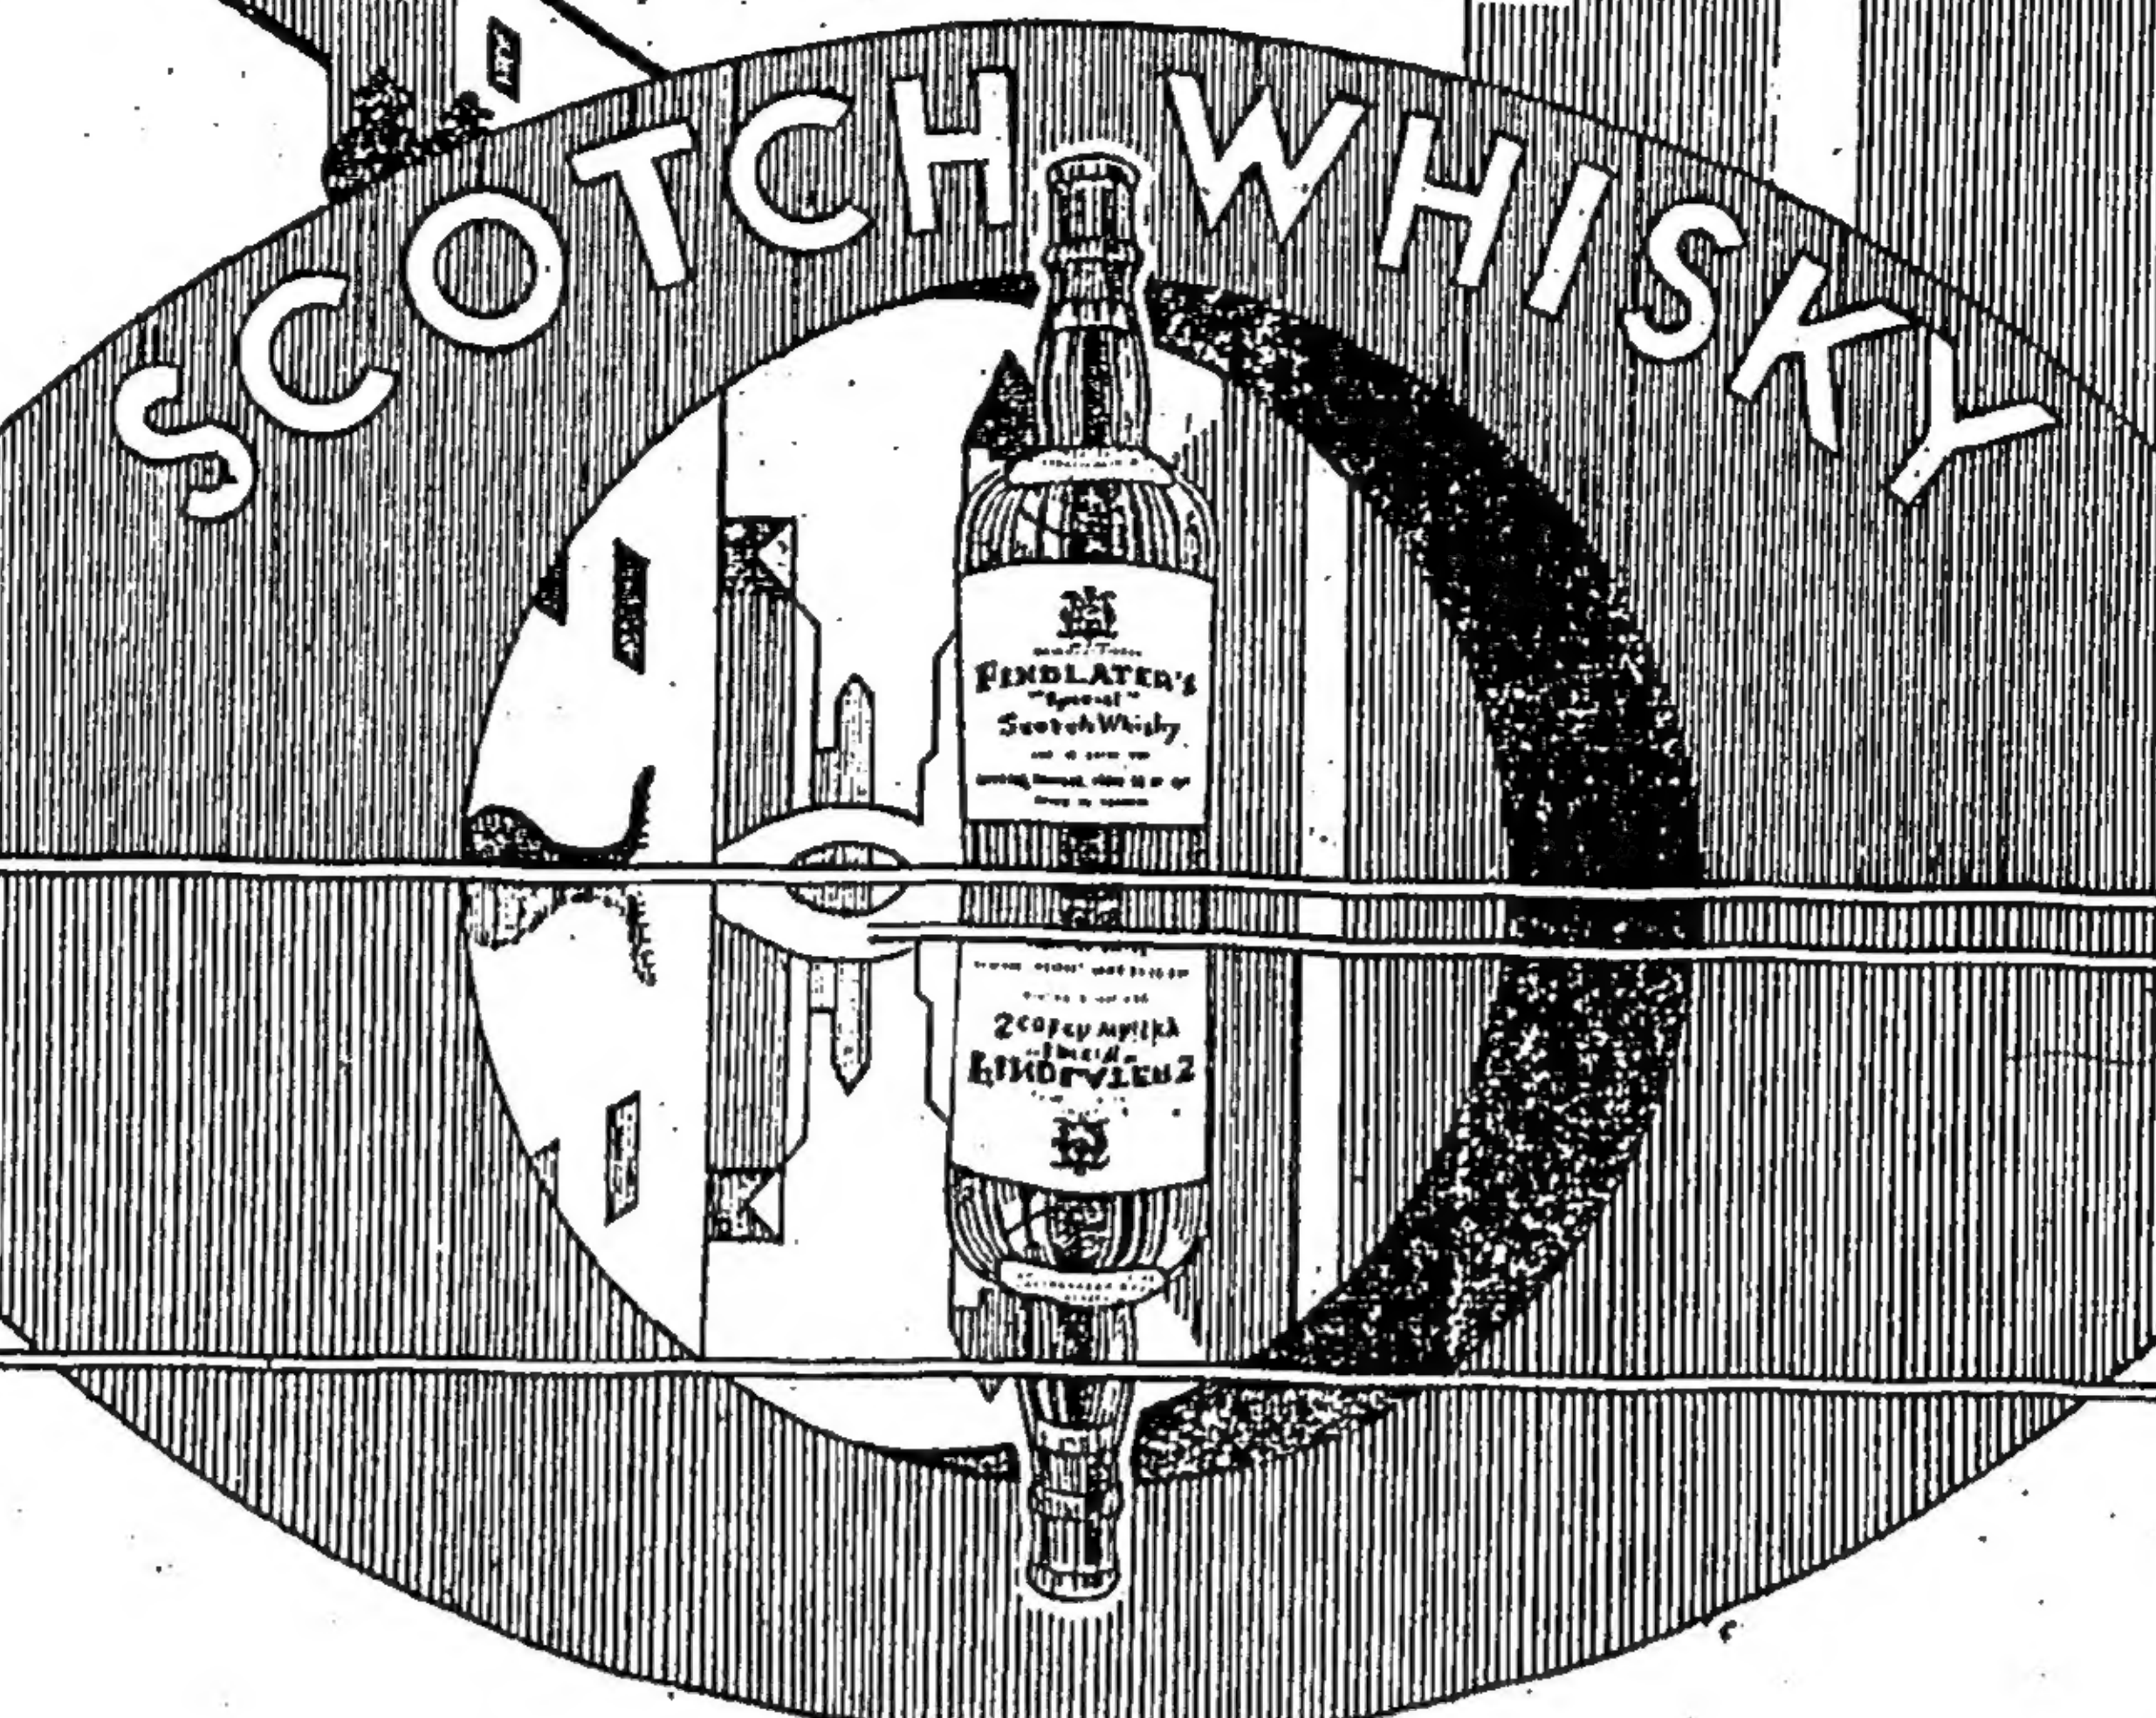

With regard to Mr. King's reference to the dancing academy, Mr. Nigel said.—The girls are forbidden to leave the academy before it closes, which is long after the hour the licence expires. I believe during the day there is little doing in the academy. It is also very unlikely that they will attract people from the academy, seeing that they will be closed long before the academy.

After the Board had considered the question, the Chairman said that the Board was of the opinion that there were at present sufficient facilities for meals and drinks in that locality, and was not prepared to grant the licence.

Two Transfers.

The Board granted an application by Mr. R. H. Waller for the transfer of St. Francis Hotel's licence from Mr. J. C. H. Rye to himself. It was stated that a new company had purchased the building.

Mr. C. North's application for a transfer of David's Cafe licence from Mr. G. Gabriller to himself was also granted. Mr. North stated that he had been assistant manager for Mr. Gabriller, and had bought the business.

FALSE HAWKER'S CHOP

POLICE MYSTERY UNSOLVED

How a false chop was entered in the Hongkong Police itinerant hawkers' register, which is kept under lock and to which only one clerk has access, and the use of a Police chop, kept solely by the Police Secretary, remain mysteries.

Before Mr. Wynne Jones in the Central Police Court yesterday, Li Piu, holder of a food stall in Cross Street, was charged with obtaining a forged hawkers' licence. He was similarly charged in respect of $32 each received from Mak Ping and Chan Wing-kun.

The Magistrate convicted defendant on the first charge and adjourned sentence to to-day.

Detective-Sub-Inspector Fender conducted the prosecution and Mr. Hin-shing Lo defended. Ho Ping-lam, a Police messenger, and Lo Yat were discharged, there being no evidence against them.

Inspector Fender said that in March this year, Mr. T. H. King, Deputy Inspector General, received information that certain members of the Police department were issuing forged hawkers' licences. Principal Chinese Detective Wong Lau was detailed to make enquiries, and these resulted in the arrest of the defendant, and the subsequent discovery of one of the victims.

In evidence, Chan Pui, of 163 Johnston Road, said that he asked the defendant to get him a hawkers' food licence in the second month this year.

His Worship.—Why did you ask him to do that?

Witness.—I had applied for a licence before but I could not get it. I applied to the licence inspector at Central Police Station in the first month last year.

What made you think he could get you a licence?—Because I heard that he was able to get a licence.

Witness stated he knew the fee for a hawkers' licence was $4. He gave defendant four copies of his photograph one of which was placed in the licence, issued in the name of Lau Ka, which name defendant told him (witness) to use if he should be questioned by the Police. He paid $40, in the presence of his master, Tang Chung, a deaf hunchback.

The Police messenger, who turned King's evidence, said he had been told to put seals on photographs in licences as the officer-in-charge had no longer a fold for that job. He discovered ten days later that the licence issued to Lau Ka was a fake.

Mr. Lo.—Do you suggest that the defendant is the man who caused the fraud to be committed?—I don't know.

Sub-Inspector A. T. Sabey, officer-in-charge of the hawkers' department, produced the itinerant hawkers' licence register, and said only one clerk had access to it. He did not consider it possible for the defendant to get hold of the book.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, witness said it was utterly impossible for the chop to be put on, in the defendant's presence.

DEATH INQUIRY.

CORONER DISAGREES WITH JURY'S VERDICT

A verdict of death due to the negligence of a Chinese driver was returned by the jury at a Coroner's inquest held yesterday afternoon at the Kowloon Magistracy before the Coroner, Mr. H. R. Butters.

The inquiry was held into the circumstances surrounding the death of a young Chinese boy, Cheong Ng, who died on May 4 this year, after having been knocked down by a Shing Mun Water Scheme bus on the Tai Po Road.

The jury consisted of Mr. C. Thwaites (foreman), Mr. Wei Tat and Mr. L. G. Cordro.

The first witness, Dr. J. B. Mackie of the Kowloon Hospital said that on May 5 he conducted a post-mortem on Cheong Ng. The body was identified by the father, Cheong Ping, a brother, Cheong Louk and a playmate, Chan Chung Man. Externally, there was blood on the ears, eyes and nose. Internally, the skull was extensively fractured. Death was due to the fracture on the base of the skull.

Father's Evidence.

Cheung Ping, the boy's father, gave evidence that his son had attended the Yuk Tan School in Cheung Sha Wan Road. The family lived in a gardeners' mated on the Tai Po Road.

Mr. S. S. Brown, employed in the Shing Mun Water Scheme, said that on May 6 he left Shing Mun a little after 5 o'clock in the Shing Mun Water Scheme bus, accompanied by four other employees and the Chinese driver, Ip Shun. Witness sat in front with the driver. The accident occurred on the Kowloon side of Kweiin Street. Witness saw two boys on the pavement, one had his back to the road and after tugging at his playmate's coat, gave a half-pivot and dived across the road. The bus, which was going at 25 m.p.h., sounded the horn and swerved to the left but caught the boy with the rear mudguard. The boy was knocked to the ground and his brother then dragged him back across the road. Witness jumped out of the bus and assisted the boy and later, reported the case to the police. He did not see any other car at the time of the accident.

Mr. S. Sanderson and two others, who were in the bus at the time of the accident, also gave evidence.

Ip Shun, the driver, declared that he was going at 15 m.p.h. when the boys dashed out from the pavement. He said that deceased ran into the bus.

Chan Chung Man and Cheong Louk, friend and brother of deceased both alleged that there were two cars. The second, the Shing Mun Water Scheme bus, was attempting to overtake the first car when the accident happened.

Speedometer Tested.

Sergeant A. M. Scrimm gave evidence of finding the boy's body and the car at the scene of the accident. He tested the tender and found that though the brakes were in excellent condition, the speedometer was out of order.

The Coroner, in his summing up, pointed out that on one hand the jury had heard the evidence of those present on the tender and on the other hand, the evidence of the two small boys. There was also the evidence given by Sergeant Scrimm. From the police evidence, it appeared to him that the blood track commenced 18 feet out from the road on the west side.

The tender witnesses said that there was no other vehicle about at the time of the accident and the two boys had said that there were two cars.

The Coroner thought that if the jury found that the boy had been

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

CHAUFFEUR CHARGED WITH HITTING CONSTABLE

Wong Hoi, chauffeur to Mr. H. R. Rowan of Sheko, was convicted on a charge of technical assault on an Indian police sergeant by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday. The summons arose from an incident outside King's Theatre on May 8. A fine of $5 was imposed.

A further summons for driving negligently was dismissed, but defendant was warned that his action in turning a large car in a crowded thoroughfare and with an obscured vision, was very unwise.

Evidence was given by an Indian sergeant that about 7 a.m. he saw a private car, coming along Queen's Road from east to west. The car stopped outside the King's Theatre, picked up some passengers, and backed across the road hitting witness in the back and almost knocking him down. A constable on duty nearby went to the side of the car and asked the chauffeur for an explanation. In reply, the defendant hit him on the chest with his fist. Witness did not hear the horn of the car sounded.

The constable, in evidence stated that he merely asked the driver why he did not look behind him and give a warning, when he was struck on the chest.

In reply to defendant, witness denied that he slapped his face.

Sergeant Baldry said he witnessed the incident and did not see the constable provoke the driver. Col. T. A. Robertson a passenger in the car, gave him his name and he allowed the car to proceed to avoid further confusion of the traffic.

Col. Robertson of the Hongkong Club, said he was seated next to the driver and in the rear of the car were his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Rowan. The car backed slowly and he was unaware that anything untoward had happened, until the police appeared at the side of the vehicle in a very excited state. One of them seized the chauffeur in a very rough manner and shook him. The chauffeur threw a man's hand off in a manner that was not intended as a blow. Witness said he felt no jar and though evidence had been given that a man was hit by the car, he thought it was improbable. Defendant was very silly in trying to turn the car in such a crowded thoroughfare.

Defendant gave evidence and said he sounded his horn, backed the car slowly, did not hit the sergeant, did not strike the constable, and was himself slapped on the face.

Mr. Rowan said that after the incident he heard "some conversation" in a language I did not understand between the chauffeur and the constable. The passengers must have observed the chauffeur's view in the mirror.

knocked down by the car travelling at 20 to 25 m.p.h. then a verdict could be brought in of death by misadventure. There was no doubt in his mind that the boy had been struck by the Shing Mun Water Scheme tender.

The jury, after consideration, returned with the verdict that death was due to the negligence of the Chinese driver.

Mr. Butters: Do you consider the negligence amounts to criminal negligence?

Foreman: No.

Mr. Butters: Personally, I must say that if the matter had been left to me, I could have found no evidence of negligence.

AMERICANS WED.

MR. E. E. BOMAR AND MISS M. R. CARTER

The marriage was solemnized at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, on Friday of Miss Mary Rowland Carter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas Carter of 2107 Cartersdale Road, Baltimore, U.S.A., and Mr. Edward Earle Bomar the son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Bomar of Tryon, U.S.A.

The Rev. W. Walton Rogers, the Vicar of St. Andrew's Church, officiated.

The bride was given away by Capt. J. J. Cadogan of the U.S. President Polk, while Miss Bernice Black of Palo Alto, California, was bridesmaid.

Mr. M. Karichuck, of Manila was best man.

GANDHI'S THREE WEEKS' FAST ENDED

Poona, May 29. Mahatma Gandhi has adhered to his fixed intention of fasting for 21 days in the cause of the untouchables. He broke his fast at noon to-day, after having eaten nothing since May 8, by sipping a few drops from a tumbler of orange juice.

The house of Lady Thackeray, where he has been keeping his fast, was besieged by friends and journalists as noon struck. Mrs.

PERSISTENT HEADACHES.

Persistent headaches, which do not give way to ordinary headache treatment, and which are usually signs of defective vision, are usually signs of weakening nerves, a condition brought about by an impoverished condition of the blood.

Nervous derangement of all kinds, including headaches, backaches, pains in limbs and insomnia, are best eliminated by tonic treatment through the blood. Most digestive troubles also are traceable to nerve weakness and thus form part of that group of ailments which has anaemia (impoverished blood) as the primary cause.

A treatment recommended by thousands of people all over the world, who have experienced its merits, is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This splendid blood-building, nerve-strengthening tonic is unique in that it contains elements which are easily assimilable and which rapidly oxygenise the blood, thus enriching, purifying and increasing the supply. Sufferers from loss of vitality and vigour, headaches, backaches, pains in joints, dizziness, and palpitation, pallor and loss in weight, nervousness, insomnia, digestive troubles, all results of poor blood, will find speedy and permanent relief in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the proved blood and nerve tonic. All chemists can supply you.

Naidu stood at the head of the stairs and selected the privileged to enter.

Meanwhile, in a small room behind glass doors, Gandhi lay motionless on a bed with wet cloths around his head. Beside him was half a glass of fruit juice.

His bed was then brought into a larger room, where he acknowledged the greeting of his friends. —Reuter.

London, May 29.
Major Elliott, Minister for Agriculture, said in the House of Commons that the foreign countries mainly concerned in the export to Britain of cream, condensed whole milk, and condensed skimmed milk, had given an assurance they would agree, as an emergency measure, to limit their export to the United Kingdom during June, July, and August to an amount not exceeding eighty per cent. of the quantities shipped in the corresponding period last year, subject to review each month.

The overseas and dominions reported in comparatively small quantities were asked to ensure that shipments remained at the previous level.

The overseas are dominions representatives had promised they would use their best endeavours to co-operate so far as they were concerned in the export of these products.

In view of these arrangements
there would be no longer any ques-

A SLANDER ON THE DOG?

SPANIEL DESCRIBED AS A CHOW

Appearing as defendant on a summons for allowing a black chow dog in Devon Road, Kowloon Tong, without a muzzle, Mr. J. M. d'Almeida Remedios, the solicitor, told Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning that he did not own a black chow dog.
He said he owned a dark spaniel, which the Indian constable might have mistaken for a chow.

Mr. Remedios also pointed out that although the alleged offence was committed on May 12, the summons was not taken out until May 23, and it was not served on him until May 26. He suggested that in future summonses should be served immediately after the offence in order to allow the defendants to make investigations.

His Worship.—I admit that the summons has been unduly delayed.
Do you plead guilty or not guilty.
Mr. Remedios.

NOT ABLE TO PLEAD.

Mr. Remedios.—I am not in a position to plead one way or the other, your Worship. I don't know whether my dog was out in the street at the time or not.

His Worship.—The only thing to do now is to take the constable's evidence.

An Indian constable testified to seeing an unmuzzled black dog going into Mr. Remedios' house on May 12.

Mr. Butters.—Do you wish to put up any defence, Mr. Remedios?

Mr. Remedios.—Not at all, your Worship.

Raising Scuttled Vessels

Moscow, May 24.

The Soviet salvaging expedition has renewed its work in the Black Sea and the Sea of Azov. Attention is now being paid to five transport ships scuttled near Odessa by remnants of the defeated White Russian armies when they evacuated that area, and another ship sunk near Novorossiysk.

The expedition is also undertaking to raise two sunken passenger vessels, the Potemkin and the Mercury, work on which was started in the fall of last year. In the nearest future these two vessels will be refloated.—Tass.

Mr. Butters.—I'll fine you $8.
All the same, I know there is no reason for the delay of two weeks.

Mr. Remedios.—The only point is that it gave me no time to investigate.

Mr. Butters.—I quite appreciate that.

In another case, Mrs. Kemp was fined $8 for allowing a brown spotted dog to be in Somerset Road without a muzzle.

FINED AFTER SHOOTING.

An elderly woman named Chui Ming, who was summoned for a similar offence, complained that her dog had been shot by the Police. A fine of $8 was also imposed.

Defendant.—But my dog has already been shot by the Police.

His Worship.—I'm not surprised.

STITCHES IN HEART
TRIBUTE TO SKILL OF SURGEON

One of the most remarkable operations in modern surgery, performed by Dr. Norman Barrett at St. Thomas's Hospital, was described at an inquest at Southampton on Edgar Ernest Crichton, aged 29, a porter, at Nine Elms Gondola Station.
It was stated that Crichton accidentally received a knife wound in the chest in a scuffle with a man who was holding a knife which he used in his work.
FIGHT AGAINST TIME.
Dr. Barrett said the blade of the knife had penetrated the apex of the heart. The man practically was dying when admitted. The hemorrhage was extensive. Three-quarters of a pint of blood were removed from the pericardium.
He placed three or four stitches in the heart muscle while the heart was still beating.
The whole operation was a desperate fight against time, but unfortunately he could not save the man's life. The operation lasted three-quarters of an hour and was one of extreme difficulty.
The coroner, Mr. Douglas Cow-burn, said that to put three or four stitches into the heart muscle while it was still beating, as Dr.
Barrett had done, was a surgical achievement which reflected the utmost credit upon him.
The jury returned a verdict of death by misadventure.
